Opinions About the Slavin-McAuliffe Fight.

Feather-weight Contest at Syd-ney-The Defeated Man De-clares That the Gloves Had Been "Fixed."

By Telegraph to The Tin NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—[By the Associated Press.] John L. Sullivan was seen today about the Slavin-McAuliffe fight to get his opinion. He never saw McAuliffe "put up his props" and never saw Slavin at all. He thinks McAuliffe too tall for a first-class

"Do you recognize Slavin as the champion of the world?" asked the re-

"By no means; he has only defeated a second-class man. Of course he is a good man, but it does not take an ex-tra good one to best McAuliffe."
"Will you makela match with Slavin?"
"No, sir, once for all that is out of the question. I have adopted the the-atrical profession and left pugilism behind forever."

THE TALK IN LONDON. LONDON, Sept. 27.—The evening papers make only the curtest criticisms upon the Slavin-McAuliffe fight. The St. James Gazette says: "Nobody is anyway the worse for the fight unle it is those who paid sums to large share in a mild entertainment."

share in a mild entertainment."

The Pall Mail Gazette says: "The spectators could not congratulate themselves on having their money's worth of punching. The result is a strange commentary upon the weeks of preparation the vanquished boxer had undergone. Slavin will retire from the ring.

Detectives present at the fight have reported to the authorities that perfect order was observed, and the rules of boxing adhered to. It is not probable the police will take any further action.

SORRY SAN FRANCISCO SPORTS. WHAT M'AULIFFE SAYS.

London, Sept. 27.—Asked toolght to secount for his defeat, McAuliffe answered, shaking his head sadly: "I sen't account for it at all, except that Slavin was smart enough to put me to sleep. I have been fairly beaten, and there's an end of all of it."

"Pil tell you how it happened," spoke up Billy Madden. "The fight was terrific from the very outset. Both men went in for slugging for all they were worth, and either man was liable to be knocked out at any moment if one of those terrible blows happened to strike the right place. That, unfortunately, is what happened to my man. If he had avoided Slavin's blow on the jaw it is quite possible he himself would have knocked. sleep. In any case it is inconceivable that such terrific fighting could have lasted more than a very few rounds."

Madden thinks if McAuliffe had fought in the second as he did in the first, he would have knocked Slavin out.

An Australian Combat Between Two Feather-weights.

Two Feather-weights.

San Francisco, Sept. 27.—[By the Associated Press.] Advices from Sydney by the steamship Mariposa, which arrived today, give an account of the fight between Billy Murphy, the feather-weight champion, and young Griffo, which took place before the Sydney Amateur Gymnastic Club for a purse of 200 sovereigns.

In the fifteenth round both started to spar cautiously. Murphy succeeded in swinging his right on to Griffo's jaw, but there was no force in the blow. He tried it on several times, but was either too far around or the blows lacked power. Griffo assumed the aggressive and by a well-directed blow on the jaw rendered Murphy groggy. Murphy for the second time tried a pivital blow, but without effect, and at the end of the round retired to his chair in a limp condition.

Before another round was called Murphy threw off his gloves, and, walking to the center of the stage, said he gave the fight to Griffo. When asked his reason he asserted that the gloves had been fixed. An examination, however, showed that the gloves were new and had not been tampered with.

France Anxious for Reciprocity Germany and Austria Abandon Their Plans for Reprisals for the McKinley Bill.

By Telegraph to The Times.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—[Copyright, 1890.
by the Associated Press.] Information received from the German Em bassy in Paris, that Ribot, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, has nego tiated with Whitelaw Reid, the Amer ican Minister, for a reciprocity arrangement between France and the rangement between France and the United States, has summarily settled the project of Count Kalnoky, the Austro-Hungarian Prime Minister, for combined reprisals against the United States in retaliation for the McKinley Tariff Bill. Emperor William never entertained the idea of reprisals. Chancellor von Herr Miquel's financial statements have also decisively influenced military reforms and lead to the retirement of Gen. Du Vernois from the War Ministry, and to the proffered resignation of Count von Waldersee, both of whom urged Emperor William to adopt Schanhorst's plan for a reorganization Schanhorst's plan for a reorganization of the army, involving a heavy increase in the war budget. Despite the popularity of the Schanhorst scheme in military circles, the Chancellor has thrown his whole influence against adding to the war budget.

The Breslau Zeitung in an interview with the ex-Chancellor, makes him say he is still vice-president of the Staatsrath. Dr. Richardson of Toronto, professor of anatomy in the University medical school, was the next expert witness.

Workmen Killed by the Fall of a Wall.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—[By the Associated Press.] Late this afternoon a long brick wall used as a backing for a score of frame houses in Allegheny, fell, burying several workmen in the ruins. Joseph Solvage was crushed to death by brick and timber. Joseph Vogel and an unknown Hungarian, known as "No. 12," were so badly injured that they will die. Three others were cut and bruised.

The accident occurred at what is known as "Colliery Row," where a number of three-story frame houses are being torn down to make room for more improved buildings.

Attempt to Wreck a Train.
ALLIANCE (O.,) Sept. 27.—An attempt was made this morning, at Maximo, near here, to wreck the limited train going west. A rail was placed partly across the track. A farm wagon was also placed across the track. A freight train came along unexpectedly and surprised the miscreants before they succeeded in their purpose, and knocked the wagon into kindling wood and pushed the rail off the track. This is the fourth attempt at this place. Those implicated in the first three attempts are in the penitentiary.

The fellow has worked the coast from Portland, Ore., to this city and has gathered in quite a sum of money, but he met his match here in the person of Detective Will Smith of the Southern Pacific Company and is now resting in jail. Smith arrested him in Yama night before last, to which place he followed him. His name is George Riley and he represents himself to be the coast agent for Curtia & Co. of Philadelphia. He is wanted at three or four places in the East and the chances are that he will get a good dose before the officers are through with him.

THE PRIMARIES.

BOYCE'S GANG KNOCKED OUT

The Republican primaries yesterday passed off quietly, considering the number of tickets in the field and the feeling that existed in several of the wards. Not a single fight occurred at any of the precincts, atthough there were a number of heated discussions, and the day passed without an arrest being made on account of the election. The feature of the day was the complete rout of the disreputable fakir, lete rout of the disreputable fakir, soyee, and his pliant tools, who were mocked out on the square issue of their eader's utter unworthiness, and by uch a decisive vote as should forever prevent them from again appearing in

The greatest interest centered in the Third Ward, where there were no less than five tickets, and all during the day the vicinity of the City Hall was crowded. Among those who were conspicuous at this precinct were Charles P. Kearney, assistant secre-tary of the Democratic County Comtary of the Democratic County Committee and member of the Democratic Congress Committee, who not only peddled out Lindley tickets but attempted to vote outsiders, giving them residence numbers in the ward for that purpose. The notorious Johany and Billy Abbott were also operating at this ward, together with several other disreputable Democratic strikers. In the Fifth and Seventh Wards a strong fight was made by the Bovce gang, but without avail. The opposition of these political cuthroats was centered against Judge Fitzgerald in the Fifth, as it was thought by defeating him a blow would be struck at Col. Markham.

Boyce, at one time during the day, finding that his situation was desperate, made overtures to Thomas A. Lewis that if he were permitted to go to the convention he would support Lewis. Mr. Lewis promptly repudiated any such alliance, and sent back word that he would stake his chances of Success on the result.

Below is given the result by wards in detail:

FIRST WARD.

East Los Angeles presented more life yesterday at the primaries than ever before on a similar occasion. The candidates for a place on the delega-tion worked their level best. There were four tickets in the field, all con-taining some good men. The regular caucus ticket was revised, leaving off the names of C. N. Earl and H. V.

SECOND WARD.
In the Second Ward the election used off very quietly, there being but a ticket in the field. From the time one ticket in the field. From the time the hardest of any ward in the city. There were no less than five distinct tickets in the, field and the crowd of workers around the City Hall during polling hours numbered fully fifty. As a voter approached the entrance he was immediately besieged and buttonholed by half a dozen ticket peddlers, all anxious to get in their work on the unsuspecting victim. There is no question that a large number of Democratic votes were cast in this ward, and it is also true that a great many votes were put in the box for persons who did not reside in the Third Ward. It is indeed an outrage that a primsry election cannot be held in this city without the interference of pernicious interiopers, professional bums who have no visible means of support, but who prey upon candidates at every election. These influences were at work in the Third Ward yesterday, and the result is, some weak men have been chosen as delegates.

The total vote of the ward was 508, and there were sixty candidates voted upon. The count was not finished until 9:30, when it was discovered that the several candidates had received votes as follows:

Frank Walker, 449; G. H. Pettis, 416. H. T. Nawell, 37; B. S. Woodside, 37; Ed Clifford, 67; C. D. Platt, 169; S. K. Adams, 149; J. M. Guinn, 162; W. W. Robinson, 94; J. M. Witmer, 285; M. G. The Fourth Ward primary was featureless with the exception of a contest over one name on the cancus ticket. J. Frankenfield defeated G. Wiley Wells by one vote, he receiving sixty-five votes to sixty-four votes for Wells. The latter was on the caucus ticket and every vote that Mr. Frankenfield received was placed upon the ticket with a lead pencil.

The total vote cast was 140, and the following delegates were chosen: B. W. Lee, H. A. Barclay, S. P. Mulford, J. A. Bernstein, George E. Gard, W. H. Rhedes, John H. Gish, E. L. Starn, J. J. FEDERAL SUPERVISORS

The Chief Supervisor Asks for Sult-able Nominations.

Gen. John Mansfield, Chief Supervisor of Elections for the Southern District of California, has sent the following letter to the chairmen of the Republican and Democratic County Com-publican and Democratic County Committees, which explains itself:

Los ANGELES, Sopt. 27, 1890.—Messrs. F.
J. Gillmore, chairman Republican County Committee, and J. de Barth Shorb, chairman Democratic County Committee—GENTLEMEN: Sections 2013 and 2026 of the Revised Statutes of the United States provide for the appointment, by the Chief Supervisor of each United States Judicial District, of two precinct supervisors for each voting precinct, who shall be of different political parties, at elections at which Federal officers are to be elected.

As a member of Congress is to be elected at the approaching zeneral election, on the 4th of November next, I have the honor to respectfully suggest that you furnish me with a list of names of suitable persons for appointment as such precinct supervisors for the respective precincts in the city of Los Angeles. The qualifications for such appointment will be good moral character.

Political Notes.

French residents of the Eighth Ward are complaining that their nationality was not represented on the tieret voted for at the primaries.

Frank McCoye feels very much hart over the statement that he was on the Boyce ticket. He denies all connection or affiliation with the smooth ditizen in any way, shape or manuer, and asya he thinks it hard that he should be classed with him after he has been for three years trying to show him up. He says he wants it distinctly understood that he has no connection whatever with the fakir. Mr. McCoye is entitled to the amende honorable.

The Scandinavian Republican Cab met last night at their headquarters. No. 127 North Main street. McDonsil Hall, vice-president; Fred E. Brett. Mr. Green, Capt. Baily and J. P. The Flambau Club paid them a pleasant visit.

Forty members were added.

The club intends to give a social and ball Saturday, October 11th.

The Lincoln Flambeau Club met at their rooms last night, when a permanent organization was effected, by the election of the following officers: President, D. A. Wilkins; secretary, C. N. In the United States Circuit Court before Judge Ross yesterday, the case of John S. Doe against the Waterloo Mining Company came up on a motion tor an injunction. Another result will be to keep in force the temporary tiff to have access to. Another result will be to keep in force the temporary restraining order heretofore made.

An order was further made for the examiner in chancery to take all the proofs and testimony in the cause.

Competency Personified.

(Allambra Review.)

The office of Assessor is one of the most important in the county. No new man can go in there and learn the business short of two years' experience. In the event of the election of a man not conversant with it a chief deputy would have to carry on the affairs.

When the people elect a man to an office they expect him to fulfill the duties thereof. Capt. Gray has had four years' experience as a deputy assessor. This combined with his well-known executive ability and capacity for organization and system renders him, beyond question, a fitting candidate for this office.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHTING FRAN-

of the electric lighting contract, which is still unsettled, will probably come up before the Council tomorrow. Councilman Bonsall, who has devoted considerable attention to this subject, recently gave facts and figures which, if correct, go to show that we are paying a great deal more than is right and necessary for the lighting of the city. It costs at present $60,000 a year, which is a very large

Mr. Bonsall makes a suggestion which is worthy of investigation. He says that, for $8000, we can put a fifty-light dynamo into the basemen of the City Hall, where we already have engineers employed, and thus save the city about $46,000 a year. This may be a too roseate view of the possibilities, but, anyhow, there is margin enough to justify a careful investigation of the proposition.

In another column the present com pany publishes a statement, giving its f the question, in the course of which the company says: "We intend to name a much lower price next year."
Is not this, of itself, a confession that the present rate is higher than is necessary to pay a fair profit, for the composite. Retrenchment is the order of the weak man who is not made the day, and if we can save the amount named on this one item of expense, or down and folds his hands in despair. named on this one item of expense, or anything approaching that sum, it will lift quite a burden from the shoulders of municipal tax-payers. We are sorry to note an apparent disinclifrom a reasonable and economical standpoint. So far from entertaining the work by the city, a majority of the Council appears to be unwilling even to permit a rival company to compete for the privilege of doing the work.

The company itself does not expect to be guaranteed immunity from compe-tition when bids are again called for, but it objects to being required to change the specifications to meet the necessities of a new system, which would require the throwing out of its existing plant entirely and replacing it with new. This, the officers declare, would be an injustice to the company which they maintain should company which they maintain should not be put upon it by the city. The subject is thus surrounded with some difficulties. It is the plain duty of the Council to make the most advantageous possible contract on behalf of the people, and at the same time to do justice as between rival bidders, fulfilling its obligations, whatever they may be, to the present company.

Tax-payers are watching the actions of the Council in this matter very closely.

LAY SERMONS.

Sometimes we look at other people and think: Oh if I were situated as they and think: Oh if I were situated as they are I could be happy. They have everything that they want in this life; every comfort and luxury and delight that money can bring. They are not obliged to labor; they can spend their time as they please; they can go abroad or they can stay at home. All countries are open to them; all the marvels of architecture, all the wonders of art; all that the world has to offer of historic interest they can explore; all that is grand, and beautiful and sublime in nature they can visit; they can build palaces, if they desire, to dwell in; palaces, if they desire, to dwell in: and they have nothing in the world to consult but their own wishes.

But we forget that the law of compensation always holds good in God's great universe; that there are ne chance happenings, and that God himself has placed us where we are for some wise purpose. Perhaps we need the discipline of poverty and disappointment. Perhaps we need the strength that comes from battling with temptation. Perhaps adversity is necessary to cut down our over-weening pride and to make us humble. we need to meet with unre quited love and tenderness to keep us ing after higher life would be dead if all our fine tastes here could be gratified and our coffers were full of silver and gold. It takes a great deal to make us long with that intense longing for a higher life out of which action is born, and the heart is strengthened by loftier purposes and nobler endeavor

God has us in His care all of the time and he knows what is best for us. He doesn't permit any accidents to mould our life. In everything that concerns us is His guiding hand. But of course He likes us to work. He knows that manhood is stronger and grander for having difficulties to overcome; He knows that great struggles and sometimes bitter trials are essential to perfect strength. If we never had anything to try us where would our faith be? The men who have left the largest impress upon the age in which they lived have always been self-made men of mighty will-power, Napoleons in persistence and Casars in deter-

There is no schoolroom like that of adversity. What reader of the sacred Scriptures has not admired the gran deur of character displayed by Moses the inspired leader of the Jewish people. Contending against Egyptian idolatry, by which his people had become enslaved, how courageous, and fearless, and unshrinking was he as he stood before them. The meekest of men, he yet became the mightiest war-rior of the ages in his determined stand against the wrong. Those forty years of discipline in the wilderness made out of that shrinking Hebrew a courageons general, a wise statesman, a beld leader, an unsurpassed legislator and an inspired prophet, beloved of God and revered by his people. The luxury and ease which he enjoyed amid the palaces of Memphis would never have given to the world this inspired poet-prophet and grand warrior of Israel. He needed the dicipline of trial and of hardsup and he found it in the desert as the leader and governor of a liberated nation of superstitious, murmusing and idolatry of Egypt had left its debasing influence upon them. They were not influence upon them. They were not worthy of their nobie leader. They were not ready for freedom. But he made of them a nation of disciplined warriors; a nation who threw off their made of them a nation of discipli

Then, again, the company gives the price per lamp, in twenty-four cities, every one of which pays, by this showing, less than the rate of $210 charged in Los Angeles. The rates in these cities, as shown by the company, vary from $127.75 to $200.

Such being the case, it is the evident of adversity. They lift us up into the sarrived here today, 166 days from New arrived here today. Such being the case, it is the evident duty of the Council to inquire whether the plan proposed by Mr. Bonsall is feasible, and, if not, to let the tax-payers know why not. But we may be glad in ever doing the duty that lies nearest us, for that will bring us joy. There is nothing like that to bring us comfort and gladness. If we are faithful in small things we may yet be able to rejoice in many and greater things. But never let us forget that God has placed us where we are, and ordered the circumstances that surrounded us, and while we are unable to rise above humble surroundings we may feel that God has need of us there.

HAPPY FRUIT GROWERS.

The Present Season a Most Profit-able One for Them.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 27 .- [By the Associated Press. A Record-Union reporter today interviewed leading fruit shipping firms on the results of the season's shipments to Eastern markets. All were well pleased with the returns. Last year there were shipped from here a grand total of 1674 cars of fruit. This year to date 2138 carloads have been sent East, and the season will not close till after November 1st. Daily shipments are still heavy, and the probability is that the season's output will double that of last year. All shipments from here, which include those of other sections of Central an Northern California, amount thus fa 0.25.000 tons of frest fruit and would make a train of cars thirteen milesong.

A RICKETTY BRIDGE.

It Collapsed When a Test Was Made of its Strength.

SAN BEBNARDINO, Sept. 27.—[By the Associated Press.] A suspension bridge with a 800-feot span, has re-cently been erected by the county over the Mojave River near Victor, fifteen feet above the river. Complaint was made that the bridge was unsafe. The county employed A. H. Koebig, a civil engineer, to examine the bridge and he pronounced itunsafe. The California Southern Railroad track runs alongside the river under the bridge, and Fred Perris, the railroad's chief engineer, notified the Board of Supervisors that the county would be held responsible for any damage done by the bridge.

The board declined to accept the bridge unless the contractors would put the bridge to a test and show it capable of supporting the weight called for in the contract.

This morning the test was made in the presence of the board and many citizens. Eight mule teams hitched to two wagons loaded with ore were placed on the bridge at the time. The structure went down with a crash, severely injuring two men, named Austin Eilis and Sam Marsh. There is great indignation and excitement at Victor.

great indignation and excitement at Victor.

It has rained hard here again this morning and is still raining, with no prospect of stopping.

[An eye-witness of the accident last night called at The Times office to say that the cause or the bridge letting down was the giving way of a section of the natural rock foundation, which caused one of the columns to sink down and leaving the other three in their original positions with the weight of the bridge still hanging on them. The anchors, he said, did not yield a particle, although the bridge was tested up to 120 tons. The bridge is fifty feat above the water and not fifteen, as a stated.

The Conference Report on the Tariff Promptly Agreed To.

nator Morgan Pires a Harmles Parting Shot at the Northern Pacific Railroad – Other Congressional Matters.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON (D. C.,) Sept. 27.—[By the Associated Press.] Sende.—Mr. Morgan introduced a bill, which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands, to forfeit lands granted to the Northern Pacific fer a portion of its line between Bismarck, North Dakots, and Wallula, Or. He also saked that the lobbyists who have been here on behalf of the Northern Pacific be prevented from getting their fees. He thought the best way to do it was for the Senate and House to take up the subject of forfsiture of that land grant. The Benate resumed consideration of the immigration contract labor law, the pending question being on Mr. Plumb's amendment, offered yesterday, providing the act shall not apply to any organization of musicians or orchestras. The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. Hoar moved that the amendment shall not apply to teachers.

Mr. Blair objected, and said he might as well let the bill go as have it picked all to picces.

The amendment was agreed to and the bill went over without acton.

The Senate bill to establish a United States land court was recommitted to the Committee on Private Land Claims.

The House bill for the adjustment of the accounts of laborers, workmen and the mechanics under eight-hour law went over without action.

The House joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to purchase nickel ore or matte for use in the manufacture of steel armor, was taken up. Mr. Cameron's amendment offered yesterday was disagreed to.

ment offered yesterday was disagreed to.

Mr. Platt did not approve of the appropriation of a million dollars now, when Congress would be in session again in two months.

Mr. Hall said it was necessary to have the appropriation made now, in order to get control of the supply of nickel which would go elsewhere if not purchased now.

Mr. Gorman said he opposed the joint resolution yesterday, but he was assured its passage was an absolute necessity in the interest of the public service, and he was bound to accept that statement. Adjourned.

House.—The House decided to take a vote on the conference report on the Tariff Bill at 6:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Tariff Bill at 5:80 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. McMillin of Tennesses withdrew the densets for reading the tariff contended to the fact that the report is printed in the record.

Mr. McKinley said it is understood Republican members desire more than one hour for debate. He asked, therefore, that the debate continue five hours, two to be given to the friends and three to the opponents of the report.

Mr. McMillin protested against the limitation being put upon discussion, but suggested if a limitation was made the hour be fixed at 6 o'clock.

Mr. McKinley acquiesced in this suggestion and asked for consent, the previous question to be ordered at that hour.

Mr. McMillin objected, whereupon Mr. McKinley gave notice that he would demand the previous question at 5:30 o'clock.

Mr. McKinley explained the provisions of the conference report. In regard to binding twine he expressed the opinion that the duty was too low, but indulged the hope that some future Congress would apply the remedy. Commenting upon the reciprocity provision, he said:

but indulged the hope that some future Congress would apply the remedy. Commenting upoa the reciprocity provision, he said:

We consented to the reciprocity provision put into our bill by the Senate, a provision perfectly well understood. Both houses accepted the amendment known as the Aldrich amendment, and indulged the hope that in accordance with the expectation and bellef of so many distinguished men all over the country, this will enable us to open any great fields for the products of our farms. We accepted this amendmeat in the hope that such result will be fully realized.

Mr. Flower of New York characterized the measure as a cyclone bill. A portion of the bill was so arranged that there could be no trade between the United States and foreign countries. It would enable manufacturers to combine and fleece the people, while the farmers would fall to find relief. Referring to the subject of binding twine, Mr. Flower said that while the gentlemen would expatiate in the West upon the provision as being in the interest of the farmers of the West it would ruin 300,000 working men in New York and New England.

Mr. McMillin of Tennessee said the bill as agree to, increased by one dollar the tax paid by every Caucasian or negro man, woman and child in the land. The reciprocity provision was a cowardly surrender of the highest prerogative of the House. The bill gave the President a power not exercised by the Czar of Russia.

Mr. McKinley then made the closing speech in advocacy of the bill. The committee had so discriminated in the adjustment of the tariff as to give protection to the people, a defense to industries and compensation to make up difference between the prices paid labor in Europe and in the United States. For it was the pride of this country that it paid more and better wages than are paid anywhere else on the face of the earth, and it was enabled to do it because the Republican party and the old Whig party before it had given its promise that it would impose a tariff on products that come into compet England or the press of other countries on this question. In opposition to this bill Great Britain and the Democratic party were in an unholy alliance. [Applause on the Republican side.] The gentlemen on the other side had said the bill would not increase the demand for a single grain of wheat, bushel of corn or pound of meat. They forget that when the bill becomes a law and new industries of manufacturing are established, employment will be furnished to a large number of men, which would mean the support of 50,000 people, and these 60,000 people would be new consumers, and thereby create new demands for the products of the farmers of the West.

Already they had begun making tin

· -- FASHION NOTES. --

NEVER in the history of this house has so much thought, time and expense been so willingly given to the purchase of Fall Goods as there has been this season. Two buyers sought the market this Autumn, and have given their undivided attention to the purchases. We can say no labor nor pains have been spared in accomplishing our one object, and that was to give the ladies of this community an equal chance with their sisters on the Atlantic Coast of having the pick and choice of the Novelties in Dry Goods. - We didn't rush in the Market and buy any and everything, and pay-large prices, but simply worked and used our brains in selections. If you buy too early you don't get the Choicest Novelties, and you pay too much. Don't, Ladies, be in a hurry to buy, for you will surely repent at your leisure unless you have visited our house. We are sure to please you with style, quality and price. This is no idle talk; but you can't afford to purchase anything until you visit us. Our Novelties are Select in Style and Texture. Our prices are lower than ever. For two reasons we claim this: First-It is our aim to handle a larger quantity than ever; Second—We have bought our Goods as low as cash would purchase, and we had the Market and Cash to command only the lowest prices from the importer.

Rough Stuffs, in Mixed, Plain and Plaids, have the preference in everything in Woolen Goods. Plushes especially are to be used in a variety of forms in Trimmings. Astrachans are affected in many ways for Trimming. Velvet Embroidered are used for Gigot Sleeves, Black Grounds with Colored Figures have the preference. Plain Velvets and Velveteens are used extensively. Fringes and hand-made Silk Trimmings, with and without Cut Beads, are very popular, and the best Styles are scarce. We are showing a large line in Scotch, English and French Plaids in Serges and Plain Cloths. Broadcloths are more popular than ever for Tailor-made Costumes. In Plain Goods, Henriettas, Serges and Whip Cords have the sway for light materials, while for Rough effects, Cheviots, Home Spuns and Aldine Suitings have come to the front for Street Dresses. English Corduroys are all the rage for Traveling and Carriage Dresses, and are affected by the Bon-Ton classes. Cloakings are shown in Rough effects.

Now, a few words about Black Goods: As in the Colored Goods, rough effects, such as Home Spuns, Cheviots, Camel's Hair, are the correct styles. For Black Goods in smooth effects, we are showing Broadcloths, English Cloths, Serges, Whip Cords, Broad Wales, Plaids, Stripes, Rip Reversible Cords, Henriettas, Rayestines, Biarritz and Sebastopol.

We have many new things in Silk and Woolen Goods to mention, but our space forbids. Come and see these Handsome Goods, and don't buy until you have visited our elegant stock. Remember! Quality superb. Quantity largest. Prices lowest.

Respectfully,

The First Shipment Fairly on the Way.

A TALK WITH MAJ. NOLAN.

His Plan for the Organization of Horticultural Societies in All Counties in Southern California.

The first shipment of the products of Southern California for the permanent exhibit at Chicago, was forwarded last night at 11:30 from San Bernardino, where the cars from San Diego and Los Angeles met, and the contents of the two put into one car, making one full carload.

Maj. George N. Nolan, late secretary of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, and now assistant manager of the Chicago exhibit, was seen last evening upon his return from San Bernardino, for which place he departed yesterday to look after the shipments. Upon being questioned concerning the exhibit, he said that he had received telegrams from President Manyel and Maj. Truman advising him that the Maj. Truman advising him that the common are now ready in Chicago to receive the exhibit. He expressed his regret that only one car had been forwarded, and while commending the enterprise of Los Angeles, Pomona and San Diego, said that only a small exhibit had been received from Orange county, and nothing from San Bernardine county, excepting a mineral exhibit from South Riverside.

excepting a mineral exhibit from South Riverside.

But Major Nolan said that he had talked with some of the leading citizens of San Bernardino yesterday, and they had promised to have an exhibit ready for the cars which would leave by the regular overland train on the 6th of October. He further added that this apparent backwardness of the counties in collecting and forwarding the necessary exhibits to open with properly in Chicago will delay his departure later than the 1stof October, when he expected to start.

departure later than the 1st of October, when he expected to start.

He stated that it was his an 1 Major Truman's desire and expectation to make the Chicago exhibit the nucleus of the grandest exhibit that will be made at the World's Fair, by systematizing the same and by proper advance work, which he confidently expects to be able to effect by organizing the counties of Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Orange in the same manner that he has organized San Diego county, into horticultural societies. These societies are organized under a uniform system, by school districts, county, into horticultural societies. These societies are organized under a uniform system, by school districts, and while they have been the principal factor in maintaining the permanent exhibit in San Diego they have in many ways accomplished much good and given a great impetus to the material development of the county. There are twenty-eight such societies in San Diego county, some embracing only one school district, and others as many as four or five districts. The first annual convention of these societies was held in San Diego in the early part of December, 1889, and lasted three days. At this time they organized the Producers Union there, which has had the desired result of supplying the producers with an Eastern market for all they have produced. This convention instead of adjourning for one year, adjourned for three months, and they have held four splendid county conventions since.

The plan in organizing all the Southern counties is to bring them all together at stated times, and thus organize the whole of Southern California for the Chicago exhibit now established, and for the World's Fair.

Every society is to appoint one man each month to attend to the shipments, the first to appoint a head for three months, and then at each subsequent monthly meeting to appoint a man and so on.

THE BY-LAWS.

The following is a brief synopsis of the by-laws under which the horticultural societies have been formed in San Diego county, and under which Maj. Nolan proposes to organize them in this county:

The object of this association shall be: The encouragement of all horticultural and agricultural interests in this community; the encouragement of immigration into this section and county: the establishment and maintenance of such measures as will best serve to advertise the advantages of this section; the collection, tabulation and preservation of all statistics relative to the

Recognizing the —— Chamber of Commerce as a public spirited institution, and an impartial factor in advancing the varied interests alike of the entire county at large; and that the permanent exhibits being maintained here and at Chicago are doing incalculable good, it shall be the first and main object of this society, to not only furnish accurate statistics thereto, but to keep in said permanent exhibits a constant supply of fresh and choice fruits, grain, vegetables and manufactured products, minerials, etc.

The membership of this acciety shall not

In forwarding exhibits to the Chamber of Commerce, if shipped by rail, contributions shall be shipped as nearly in one shipment as possible, from time to time, and packed as well and securely as can be, with the name of variety and owner, whether sent by rail or otherwise. This society shall designate some suitable person to attend to shipment of exhibits each month, and the president shall appoint a standing cemmittee of three on statistics each year, whose duty it shall be to gather all the statistics. This society may brovide for the necessary expenses incurred in maintaining its organization and carrying out

In addition to matters of local interest, this society shall make especial efforts to collect exhibits for the permanent exhibit at Chicago, and make timely preparations for the exhibit at the World's Fair.

In order that statistics may be accurate, the area embraced in the several societies shall be confined to school districts, but one tooling may contain more than one school listrict.

The counties of Southern California embraced under this uniform organization shall meet at least once a year in joint convention, with one or more delegates from each society, and each society shall be entitled to one vote, notwithstanding the number of delegates present therefrom. The first annual convention shall be held in San Diego county, at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, the second Tuesday in December, and until the business of the convention is transacted, and the next convention elsewhere, as may be then determined.

Mrs. W. L. Coenen and her husband are happy today, and they have good reason to be. Yesterday a jury in Superior Judge Clark's court awarded the lady a verdict against the Los Angeles Cable Railway Company for damages in the sum of $15,000.

The case occupied the attention of Judge Clark and the jury all of yester-

Judge Clark and the jury all of yesterday, a good portion of the time being devoted to arguments.

About 5 o'clock the matter was turned over to the jury to settle. After being out only a short time they returned to the courtroom and the foreman announced that an agreement had been arrived at.

Then it was that the startling announcement was made that the verdict was for the plaintiff in the sum of $15,000.

It will be remembered that in November of 1888 the plaintiff and her husband were riding in a wagon on Downey avenue in East Los Angeles. A double horse-car of the company collided with the wagon and Mrs. Coenen was thrown to the ground. As a result she sustained serious injuries and is now bed-ridden.

Old man Clark, who used to run little grocery atore on South Spring street, made his way to the police station at midnight last night and lodge a complaint against his son, who, he says is a prize fighter. The old man says is a prize fighter. The old man was suffering from an ugly wound in his right cheek, which he said was made by his son's fist, but it looked as if the wounded man had been struck with a hammer or some blunt instrument. The fight took place on San Julian street, but old man Clark could give no reason for the trouble other than that his son is a prize fighter and wished to practice on some one, He says this is the third time his hopeful has made a "practice bag" of his head, and he is getting tired of this kind of playfulness. The officers started out to look young Clark up, but they had not found him at a late hour.

Runaway Boys Captured. Officer Rulo captured four boys, ranging in age from 8 to 12 years, at the San Fernando-street depot last night, shortly before train No. 20 left for the North. From the action of lett for the North. From the action of the youngsters the officer made up his mind that they were about to run away, and he gathered them in. At the police station they were searched, and their worldly wealth stacked up $1.05 in coin, a handful of cigar butts and an old-style Colt's revolver loaded with slugs. The youngsters were going to Texas to fight cowboys. Three of them were locked up and the fourth one was sent home. The parents can have the others by calling and proving property. property.

A LOST ADDRESS.

A Trinidad Lady Writes to San Francisco

Mrs. Harriet McNamara of 319 State Street, Trinidad, Colorado, while visiting in St. Louis last summer, did not suffer with her usual sick headaches and indigestion. But upon her re-turn to Trinidad her old troubles came upon her. It was not the St. Louis climate that did so much for her sick headaches. The secret is told in the following letter, received by Thomas Price & Son, the well-known assayers of 524 Sac-ramento Street, San Francisco. Mrs. McNamara writes:—

"Three months since I was visiting in St. Louis and obtained two bottles of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. It was of great relief to me in my headaches and indigestion. Since my return to my home in Trinidad I feel the need of it, and as I have lost the address I write to you to ask if you will not kindly forward this letter to the proper number in San Francisco, and have me sent a few more bottles of this valuable vegetable compound."

Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is an almost certain cure for sick headaches and constipation. People who have used it once will send hundreds of miles to get !!, as in the above instance.

Plasterer Badly Bruised b Failing Scaffold—An Old Lad Falls down a Staircase— Seriously Injured.

There was a regular epidemic of ac-cidents yesterday, and Dr. Morrison, the Pelice Surgeon, was kept busy at the receiving hospital during most of the day.

Yesterday morning about S. O'clock, a plasterer named Chris Butcher, working on the Kuhrts building at the corner of First and Main streets, was badly bruised by a scaffold falling on him. The patrol wagon was sent for, and Butcher was taken to the receiving haspital, where Dr. Morrison streets. ing hospital, where Dr. Morrison at-tended him. An examination showed that no bones were broken, but as the man complained of severe pains in the back it was feared that his spine was injured. After lying down for half an hour, or so, Butcher said that he felt able to walk to his home, and left the station.

SLIGHTLY HURT. Dr. Walter Lindley, in crossing Spring street near the Courthouse, yesterday forenoon, was struck by a cable car and knocked down, but was not seriously hurt. He was taken into the office of Maj. Burke, near by, and in a few minutes was able to attend to his business.

CRIPPLED FOR LIFE. About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Ira Jones, an employé of the electric light company, met with an accident which will render him a cripple for life. Jones was at work replacing the carbon and cleaning the lamp at the corner of Spring and Fifth streets, standing on a step ladder about fifteen feet high, when the ladder addenly slipped from under him, and he was thrown violently to the pavement. As he came down Jones threw out his hands to protect himself, but such was the force of his fall that both arms were broken, one at the wrist and the other at the elbow, and he struck the pavement on the side of his face, knocking out his teeth and cutting his face. Jones fainted from the excructating pain, but soon regained consciousness, and was hurried to the police station, where Dr. Morrison was waiting to receive him. He was taken to the receiving hospital and in a few minutes Dr. Wise, who had been sent for by the electric company, also arrived, and the surgeons at once went to work to relieve, as far as possible. An axamination showed that the elbow joint was shattered, the ends of the bone protruding though the site, and making an ugly would. The poor fellow's wrist joint was also crushed. The surgeons stated that one arm is completely disabled for life and the other will be driving little use. The accident was caused by the ladder slipping on the smooth asphalt pavement, which was realized as allock as glass by the rain. The ladder was a temporary affair and Jones and that be had spoken shout it saes or twice during the morning as he feel or twice during the morning as he may be a said that be had spoken shout it saes or twice during the morning as he had a said that be had spoken shout it saes or twice About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoo Ira Jones, an employé of the electric

The patrol wagon had bardly returned with Jones when a call came in by telephone that a woman had been hurt at the corner of Piest and Spring streets. She proved to be an old lady named Mrs. Putnam, who lives at No. 72 Date street. Mrs. Putnam had been to Dr. Fellows's office, in the Odd Fellows' building, and as she started down the steps missed her footing and fell about half way down the ataircase. She was cut about the mouth and a set of teeth broken. Her injuries are not believed to be dangerous. She was sent to her home in a carriage.

Lively Republican Caucus Meeting.

YESTERDAY'S PRIMARIES

The Regular Ticket Elected - Why the Affair is interesting—What Will Pasadena Get in the Convention?

The Republican caucus meetings held Friday evening, which nominated the County Convention delegates named in yesterday's issue of THE TIMES, were very largely attended and the nominations were attended with more than name interest.

met and formally agreed to support the caucus ticket. The primaries were held yesterday afternoon at the office of C. W. Bell between the hours of noon and 4 o'clock. The following noon and 4 o'clock. The following is the regular ticket as elected.

C. M. Simpson, W. R. Staats, J. F. Mullin, C. C. Browe, A. V. Dunsmoor, A. Wakeley, C. W. Bell, T. Banbury, J. McDonald, E. J. Millay, J. S. Coz, Fred Swift, G. A. Richardson, C. S. Martin, W. L. McAllister, Delos Armold. A. S. Butterworth, E. H. May, R. P. Gahr, W. O. Swan, Jr., J. W. Wood, C. A. Smith, M. H. Weight, W. B. Rowland, A. E. Nichols.

In all there were 251 votes cast, eighty-five of which were "scratched." This is due largely to the fact that one of the delegates was accused of acting in bad faith, but it is due to the gentleman referred to to say that the charge, which he vigorously denies, was not substantiated.

which he vigorously denies, was not substantiated.

The caucuses and primaries have been attended with unusual interest in view of the indorsement by the delegation of Jas. McLachlan for the nomination of District Attorney or of W. S. Wright for that of Superior Judge, or both. The majority of the local Republicans are of the opinion that Pasadena will not get both offices.

Out of the twenty-five delegates allotted to Pasadena, the twelve nominees from the Third and Fourth Wards are all McLachlan men. Ten of the remaining delegates are solid for Wright, with the other three for both Wright and McLachlan, believing that both men are well suited for the offices they seek and that Pasadena is entitled to receive both at the hands of the County Convention.

titled to receive both at the hands or the County Convention.

So the matter stands. Although both candidates have their stanneh sup-porters who do not hesitate to air their views in public places, the best of good feeling prevails and Pasa-dena's delegation may be counted on acting as a unit, and for the best in-terests of all concerned when the con-vention convenes.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

A magnificent raintow illuminates

The politicians were out in full force yesterday. The streets were crowded with groups of citizens, all eagerly discussing the vital question of the hour. A stranger was heard to inquire if Robiason's circus had not reached town ahead of time.

The teachers' institute exercises will begin at 9:30 o'clock next Saturday morning, instead of at 3 p. m., as announced yesterday.

An interesting meeting of the Social Purity Society was held in the Mettrodist Church parlors yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Margaret V. Lougley made an address.

Members of the Council yesterday afternoon inspected the Cross road track near where it crosses South Fair Oaks avenue, and found it badly washed by water drained from a Chinese laundry. Action will likely be taken to arrest the nuisance at the next regular meeting of the board.

Rev. S. A. Gardner will preach this morning in the Universalist Church. He will leave tomorrow for Fresno to begin an important work to which he has been called. His isbors here during Dr. Congret's long vacasiton have been greatly appreciated by the Universalist parish and the many others who have listened to his eloquent discourses.

Curious Notices.

At Scalby, near Scarborough, there is a notice which reads: "Stick no bills. One pound reward if found out." The question arises, who can claim the reward? Can it be claimed (1) by a person who sticks no bills; (3) or by the person who finds another person out in the act of not sticking bills? I am inclined to favor the last solution, but I ewn that it admits of argument.

At Ballydown, in Connty Down, might be seen some time ago the notice, "Any one trespassing on these grounds, without permission, will be prosecuted." I have seen another notice on a tramway in the adjoining county of Armagh in which punctuation is treated with scant courtesy. If reads, "It is dangerous to walk on the line by order of the directors."

On the book ledges of a suburban parish church was displayed a short time since, neatly wrinted, the following notice. "All

A Dangerous Instrument.

Antoine, a noted trombone player, died in London at the age of 70, having blown through brass instruments for a matter of forty-two years. It used to be said that brass band players died early and died of lung diseases, but newadays it is claimed that hard and deep breathing strengthens the lungs, as it does in the case of singers. Apropos of the former theory, it is said that a professor in a medical college took the students of his clinic to the bedside of a man who was dying of consumption and said: "Here you see an illustration of the evil effect of playing on wind instruments. This patient was a member of a brass band. What did you play in the band, my poor fellow?"

"The bass drum," was the answer.—

Broad Views of a Woman. Broad Views of a Woman.

Mrs. Allen Freeman Palmer, formerly president of Wellesley college, has some capital ideas about women and girls which do not accord with the prevailing theories. "The influence of the higher education of women," she says, "is to benefit, improve and idealize the home life. It means breadth of mind, self control, self reliance, sweetness of temper, sound health and, above all, womanliness. The first step must come from the gymnasium door. There the laws of living are interpreted; there the woman learns to know herself, and there is laid the foundation for mental health, muscular development and physiand there is laid the foundation for mental health, nucsular development and physi-cal perfection. The time for the whimsi-cal, nervous woman is past; there is no room for the girl who lives by her emotions outside of the sanitarium or lufatic asy-lum. Good health, logical training and a correct ideal will ennoble the woman and raise the standard of home, which is the hasis of society."

Wardrobe of a Skirt Day Wardrobe of a Skirt Daucer.

I wear eight skirts every nights. On each are twenty yards of lace, half a yard in depth, so that I carry 160 yards every time I appear in a skirt dance. Then with the tights and other little pieces of wearing apparel I carry a heavy weight. My skirts are never starched or washed. Just as they become dirty they are thrown away and new ones are bought. My lace bill is a large one and it embraces many different colors.

I never have them starched, because they hang much ensier and a great deal closer to the lags. If they were starched some people would think I wore hoops.—Violet Mascotta.

A good story is told of one of the cakes donated for the refreshments. It was baked by the Chinaman in charge of the culinary department at Marengo Hall. He, asked what the ca'e was for and was told it was to be eaten at a church social. He, therefore, very appropriately as he thought, put on the icing in raised letters this touching inscription: "Come to Jesus, from Marengo Hall." The Celestial's touching inscription: "Come to Jesus, from Marengo Hall." The Celestial's religious training has evidently re-ceived careful attention.

CALLING ON A KING. Photographic Interview with the Monarch of the Turf. CURIOUS TALK WITH SALVATOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—[Special Correspondence.]—It is not easy to approach the supreme head of the American turf. When King Salvator is in and I must confess that even to me his stable, casual visitors are expected to pay their respects from a respectful distance. Without proper credentials callers are regarded with suspicion. The monarch's most immediate attendant is a colored boy named Brandon. There isn't a stable lad in America who wouldn't give up all claims upon watermelons for the balance of his life if he could have the honor which Brandon enjoys, and this, it will be conceded, is saying a good deal. When ceded, is saying a good deal. When the Haggin horses are out for an air-ing, the king is invariably at the head of the procession. The fitness of things finds further fillustration in the fact that next in line comes the queen of the track, Firenzi, whose claims to royal honors have been vindicated on so many hard-fought fields. Successes have not turned the head of Salvator; greatness sits as easily upon him as his exercise blanket. A more tractable animal was never foaled. He is apt to be a triffe sloggish in the early spring, when it becomes essential that about fifty pounds of his superfluous tissue should be worked off.

disagreeable business of getting down to his running weight of about a thousand pounds. His royal highness is a cheatnut, brild-faced and white-legged below the knees. It would be easy to mistake him for an English horse with his remarkable muscular development and unusual length. A thousand pounds is not above the average weight, neither is his height unusual, but the shoulders stand up in more than proportion to his altitude and account in some degree for his phenomenal propelling power. He is a haudsome horse, but not remarkably so. Sefforita has perhaps greater beauty to the square counce of tissue than Saivator has to the square pound, but he is a superb-looking beast notwithstanding. Sefforita is a perfect model of equine daintiness and finish; Salvator's light barrel and magnificest quarters tell a story of speed and strength. All his lines are consistent with his astonishing achievements. To see Saivator in his stable and to see him under a jockey is to look at two different quadrupeds When he is being exercised at a slow walk his head is carried low and his motions give little promise of his possibilities; when he is fighting for his head and leaving his "field" behind, his stride long, easy, smooth and natural, is perhaps as pure a gait as ever adorned the turf. For entertaining the opinion that take him all in all we

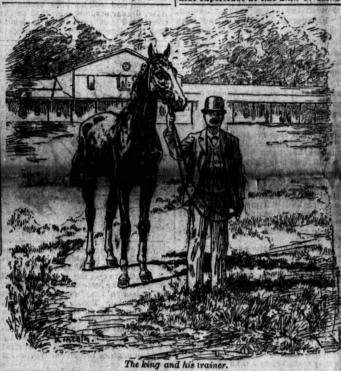

"Will you please explain?"

"Will you please explain?"

"I prefer not. As another sprig of royalty once remarked—I allude, of course, to the sire of the Melancholy Dame—I could a tale unfold,"

"Do you mean your own?"

This ill-timed levity came near bringing the interview to an abrupt termination. After profuse apologies the atmosphere cleared up somewhat and Brandon's pet was induced to proceed. "Place not your faith in close finishes. I am not in a position to disclose the secrets of my profession, but if I were I could tell you a story which would make interesting reading."

would make interesting reading.

"Can't you give it to me in confidence?"

This question, for some inexplicable reason, seemed to completely upset Salvator's gravity. He laughed most immoderately.

"The idea of telling any thing to an interviewer in confidence! Now see, young man, let me give you a tip, Don't shudder; I don't mean a tip in shall see Salvator's like no more, Trainer Matthew Byrnes may readily be pardoned. The racing at Sheeps-head Bay was not over for the day when he introduced me to the mon-when he introduced me to the monarch.

"Whydidn't you wait and see the last race run, Mr. Byrnes?" I asked.

"I would rather come here to see Salvator walk than to see other horses going at full speed," was the reply.

Salvator received me with condescending graciousness.

"You are perfectly welcome," said the affable autocrat of the track, "to any information I shall give, but I have a natural reluctance to entering upon anything in the nature of a personal discussion. Nothing in my judgment can be so unbecoming as the habit..."

the racing sense of the word. I trust I'm too well bred for that. You can look at my pedigree if you don't believe me. What I meant to say was: Let me give you a hint. I know an interviewer the minute I see him. I don't know how I came to speak to you at all. You come and catch me when I have a jucid interval and see how reticent I'll be."

"Well, it's too late to regret it now."

"I know it, but there's one thing I want to tell you, and people can make the most of it. The fact is that up to the time of that affair at Sheepshead Bay, Tenny and I had an understanding. He didn't keep faith with me, and so I gave him a licking at Moumouth that he won't forget in a hurry."

"What was the understanding?"

"Was the understanding?"
"Well, you see Mr. Hagkin told byrnes in my presence that if I held my supremacy until the end of the seaton he'd retire me. I put the finatter of Tenny in this way: He could have clear field next year if he wouldn't other me this season. Tenny agreed, and you know how he tried to steal a narch on me at Sheepsbead. Well, he game didn't work, and I made a how of him at Monmouth. You would have done the same thing in my lace, wouldn't you?"
"That was rather underhanded."
"Wasn't it? Since then Tenny has been trying to bring about a reconciliation, but it won't work."

"You astonish me."

"I suppose I do, but if you doubt my word ask Firent; she'll tell you the same thing. Tenny tried to get her to persuade me to let up on him."

"I don't doubt your word, but I don't see where the necessity is for making any bargein with Tenny if you can beat him so easily."

"It does look a little strange, doesn't it? But I think I know what I'm about. You see, Tenny isn't like any other horse. Sometimes he can give a streak of lightning a good start and beat it, and at other times he's no better than a selling plaster. You never know where to find him. Now that we've fallen out, I have to keep keyed up to the top notch to be sure he don't get away from me. All I'm afraid of is that some day he'll catch me when I'm not feeling well. If he does, he'll come near doing the trick in spite of me if it's one of his good days. But, let's change the subject. I don't like unpleasant topics."

"What on earth de you, of all other horses, want to relife from the turf for? Now, if you were an old plug, bringing up the rear all the time, I could understand it."

"Well, you go into training during the hot weather, and you'll find out. To say nothing of hard work, I can't take a drink when I feel like it. Then there's that fellow Brandon. I used to like him at first. but I've got bravely over it. He watches me like a cat and haunts me like a ghost, How would you like it? I've been tempted to kick his whole head off many a time. Haggin's a good fellow but I don't see much of him. That's the worst of being owned by a millionaire. Of course I could have an easy time if I wanted to, but I'd have to pay for it in the end."

"How's that?"

"Well, I could get beaten half-a-

"Well, I could get beaten half-adozen times, and they'd take me off the track; but after that they wouldn't think much of me at the stock farm, where I'm going to spend the balance of my days; and I wouldn't be treated rather pointed question?"

"Don't make it too pointed; it's my first experience at this kind of thing."

"I'll be as delicate as possible. You have said nothing which justifies the conclusion that races are run on their merits. Are horses in the habit of coming to what you call an understanding with each other?"

"Why, my dear boy, your guillesseness is preferly received."

"Why, my dear boy, your gullelessness is perfectly refreshing. Can't you soe that we are the real protectors of the public? Everybody knows that owners combine, that races are fixed in advance, that in other words, the trusting public has no show unless we take the matter in hand. We are constantly trying to preserve the purity of the turf. You've heard of a lead pipe cinch? Well, if you haven't, it's time you did. I could tell you of a dozen cases in which either owners or jockeys have put up a job, and in which their calculations were upset. When you hear of another sure thing gone wrong you can make up your mind that nothing but an honest horse broke the combination, You didn't know, I suppose, that I am president of our anticrookedness society?"
"Well, I've heard of a good many

"Well, I've heard of a good many pret ty little schemes coming to grief, but I had no idea that the horses took any hand in defeating them."

pret ty little schemes coming to grief, but I had no idea that the horses took any hand in defeating them."

"I want to tell you just one thing more, It's a mystery to me why, as a class, racers do their level best to beat each other. They usually have in the saddle either a little brute or an imbecile, who draws blood and uses the whip just at the moment when he should be sitting still and giving his mount a chance. They think that is riding. We know better. We will do more in response to a touch for an intelligent fellow like McLaughlin than we will for all the punishment that the troop of little scamps who weigh in at the races can inflict. I don't say that horses are perfect, Some of them have bad tempers, and many of them are vicious enough to be a human being. I know horses on the track who have no more business to be there than an elephant has to be on a bleyele, but they are driven, harried, butchered and worried, and the marvel is that they don't display greater infirmities of character. However, this discussion is taking a somewhat serious turn, which I am sure was not my design."

At this moment Brandon thrust his head through the half-open door, surveyed his majesty for an instant and withdrew.

"There he is again," said Salvator. "I shouldn't be surprised if he's been listening to every word we've said. Now you begin to have some idea of the unfortunate position of a horse in training. I can't hold a confidential conversation with a visitor without fear of interruption. There's one thing I want to ask you before you go. I understand I'm to be photographed in a variety of attitudes, and that the protographs are likely to be printed. Now, I'il leave that to you if that isn't a fine thing—(he king of the turf masquerading about in front of a photographer? What indignity will Byrnes want to affront me with next?"

"Do you regard it as an indignity?"

"Wouldn't any self-respecting animal?"

"Well, all I have to say is that you needn't go far to find a precedent. Don't you remember that a celebrated Brooklyn divine was recently photographed in every conceivable posture, except, perhaps, that of standing upside down?"

"You don't tell me; I hadn't heard of it."

"Who do you suppose it was?"

"Who do you suppose it was?"

"On the other hand purchases of city property made upon the notion that have been Talmage. But here's Brandon coming again. You'll have to hurry off. By the way, just a word before you go. I wish you'd make a little announcement for me."

"Why, certainly. What is it?"

A spin around the bend at full speed.

"Close finishes, eh? Well, you can tell them both that if Haggin enters me they won't be in it." With a coquettish flourish of his tail the king of the turt dipped his none fastidiously in a pull of water, while

GROWTH OF CITIES.

Ups and Downs of Real Estate Speculation.

Isan Francisco Call.]

Referring to a recent article in the Call on the growth of the cities in the new State of Washington, a correspondent draws our attention to the fact that city lots in Seattle and Tacoma are selling at $1000 a front foot on streets which are not yet graded or sewered, and that lots in the outskirts of those cities, actually "in the bush," sommand from $200 to $600 a lot. There is nothing surprising in this. We are a speculative and a sanguine psople. We always believe that our particular goose is going to turn out a swan. We have a way of discounting the future, which is very seductive to the hopeful mind; as builders of castles in Spain, we have no equals in the world. That our hopes should sometimes outrun our judgment is no matter of wonder.

It is quite within the range of possibility that lots on the main streets of the two growing cities of West Wash-

"About fifty thousand dollars."

"Why, that isn't much. It isn't as much as the Futurity, but still it's worth winning. Are there many entries?"

"Quite a number."

"When is it to be run?"

"Not until 1892."

"That shuts me out, I'll be off the turf by that time. Thank heaven, but I'd like to give them a run for it. Who are the favorites?"

"Well, there's Blaine on one side and Cleveland on the other. Blaine is aged and Cleveland's a six-year-old."

"Ate they in training?"

"Yes, but Cleveland hasn't got down to weight yet."

"What are their performances?"

"Cleveland won it once and was once beaten by a head for it. Blaine has heen beaten for it, too. He lost it by a nose."

ago they were considered good property.

Sanguine speculators, who tumble over each other in a mad rage to secure lots in new cities at prices which will not be legitimately reached for a generation or more, serve a purpose. They promote enterprise and stimulate public improvements. Most of them are sooner or later landed high and dry by the ebbs and flows of speculation, but they have the consolation of feeling in their wreck that in the heyday of their prosperity they assisted in anticipating the work of development, and left behind them substantial memorials of their public spirit.

It pays one to go to the depot in a great city sometimes and study human nature as it is seen there. There are whole worlds of sorrow, of tenderness, of pathos and of pride disclosed there at intervals, and we get genuine glimpses into the human heart that make us realize how little we understand men as we meet them in the midst of busy everyday life.

Down at the depot the other day was a noble-looking Swede. He was waiting for the train to come in. The time seemed long to wait, for he was there early. He drew a little away from the crowd as if he would like to be alone with his own thoughts. I knew Hans well, and I knew that on a pleasant street of the city was a newlybuilt little cottage set round with trees, and with a broad veranda, over which a beautiful rose bush had begun to climb, and a fragrant heneysuckle vine was sending up its siender tendrils. The house, with its small garden, was, like Hans, waiting for somebody. Even the birds seemed to know it, for that very afternoon I had caught a couple of them perched on the broad window sill in front, and peeping in at the half-opened window. And they had found there a pretty little parlor, the oiled floor covered with bright rugs, and on the little table one vass filled with fragrant roses and a bit of lemon verbena and blossoming heliotrope. The picture seemed to do them good, for they twittered gaily as if they were talking matters over between themselves and discussing the secret that the great world knew nothing of whatever.

It was that secret that had sent Hans to the depot that afternoon and there he was waiting for the everland train to come in, that should bring to him the sweet-faced, blue-syed girl that had come across the seas to meet him, and for whom the little cottage had been built, and the roses taught to climb over the porch.

There was a carterpiliar at Hans's fost, and it seemed to loiter about him as if it was in sympathy with Hans's day-dreams and the pictures that he was conjuring up of her coming. It wriggled and squirmed as if it would say: "Just look at me new, do. I know all about it and I am glad with you. Let me stay to see her coming."

Just then the whistle sounded, and in a moment the great iron anster came rushing into the depot, the crowd jostled about the track. Is had caught sight of the sweet face he was looking for, and his eyes had mether's for one moment. Then there was a swift flutter in the cars, and a graceful, girlish figure stepped out upon the platform, and Hans reached up both arms, and in a moment he had caught her hands and helped her down, and there were tears of joy in her eyes as she kissed him, but she could only say:

"O, Hans! Dear Hans!" And then he led her to a carriage that was waiting, and away they went to a certain parsonage, where the minister was waiting to say the words to make them one.

That evening there was a light in

That evening there was a light in the little cottage, and the beautiful story of the day was told. The long waiting had ended, and love had found rest and home.

There is something brutal in the nature of a big boy who can abuse another smaller than himself. Only cowards do such things. I was going along the street Wednesday when I saw three or four boys together. Among them was a big bully who was displeased at something which a small boy about half his size had done or said, and he gave him a vicious kick which hurt him severely. It was too much for an honest, tender-hearted woman, who witnessed the affair, to endure, and she turned upon the bully in a storm of righteous indignation, and she talked to him until he slunk away like a whipped cur, not daring to make any response. A mean, brutal nature is always cowardly. nature is always cowardly.

"These are hard times, Jerry," observed the dejected policeman, as he leaned up against the fruit stand and his fingers mechanically closed on the finest specimen in the orange pile.

"Ye're right, Mr. Murphy," said the fruit man. "It's all we kin do to make a livin'."

"An's some of us," pursued the man in uniform, "ain't makin' even that. It's hard luck when a man that's always done his duty an' never give no cause for complaint gits turned out of a job'thout a minute's warnin' on account of some favorate of the mayor's that wants his place."

"Wot de ye mean, Mr. Murphy? Ain't you on the force now? Have you been gittin' turned out?"

"That's what I have, Jerry. They give me the bounce about an hour ago, and I'm lookin' around now for a job that'll?"—

"Then take yer dirty hands off'n that bunch of bunanas and drop that orange quickern lightnin'," roared the fruit man, "or I'll have ye arrected for stealin'. You ain't on the free list of this establishment any longer. Git!"—Fittsburg Dispatch. picked up the properties for which his heirs are now concesting they were not worth much more that $500 a lot, and it was an open problem whether they would ever increase much in value. As a general rule, real estate in cities which have a future is good property to hold. Some of the most substantial fortunes of the day have been acquired by its purchase. But its advance in price is not steady and gradual. It moves by fits and jerks. A day comes when a large number of persons simultaneously realize its coming value, and everybody buys for fear of being loft. This leads to a boom. The boom is followed by a reaction, in which everybody is a seller and nobody a buyer. Then, under pressure of forced sales. prices recede as rapidly as they had risen, and the fortunes which realestate holders had seen in their visions vanish into air.

THE DUEL IN GERMANY.

Students Slash Each Other on Slender Provocation.

THE TEUTONIC CODE OF HONOR

Insuks Are Not Considered Neces sary to a Fight With Swords-Proof of Courage and Not a Settlement of Differences

The students' weapons, ties on the part of the gallant nations of Western and Southern Europe, his Anglo-Saxon cousins shortly end all discussion by calling the custom semi-barbarous or even ridiculous. But notwithstanding that, people with whom boxing is a national sport, who even pay money to see human beings injure each other, have no right to condemn the "manly art of self-defense" in another form. I think that with this, as with other unfamiliar customs, we should try to understand before we pass judgment. What I purpose in trying to give the philosophy of the duel is not so much to defend the custom, which seems not to come up to the standard of civilization, as to explain it. We must distinguish between two kinds of duels fought in German universities. One kind, which is not peculiar to students, nor to Germans, is a contest for life and death, to settle some serious difficulty on some point of honor. This is common to all nations on the European continent. Even in this country such duels have not yet quite disappeared. In Europe they will not disappeare as long as society thinks it beneath the dignity of a gentleman to bring certain offenses into court, or considers a man's honor. stained by insults for which there is no kinds of duels fought in German unigentleman to bring certain offenses into court, or considers a man's honor stained by insuits for which there is no redress in law. How powerful a hold this code of honor has upon society is shown by the fact that no military officer can keep his epaulettes who declines a duel, or who, under certain circumstances, does not challenge. To take a single instance, a man like Ferdinand Lassalle, who personally was greatly opposed to the duel, felt himself obliged to submit to the custom and died its victim. This duel to the death may have originated in a desise for vengeance; in many cases it was undoubtedly an invocation of a higher power to prove the falseness of the charge implied in the insult.

The modern duelist, though the baser feeling of revenge may often guide his deadly weapon, has another philosophy. It is not the destruction of his opporient which he desires; he tries, by expann himself to the danger of being killed and wounded, to prove his courage, which is the first of manly virtues, and thus to clear his honor. This is the reasoning of society, which will not accept any one as a gentleman who declines to show his courage in this way. Most duels are fought for this reason; it is the condemnation of society which is feared more than the weapons of the that society in which we live. We may that society in which we live. We may try to change the same, we may show their absurdity, but nevertheless we must submit to them or give up our so-cial position. Therefore in Europe the individual engaging in a duel under this code of honor is not to be blamed for it.

this code of honor is not to be blamed for it.

But there is a question whether we should be more ready to condemn society for maintaining this custom. To call it barbarous may be superficial and pedantic. Behind this absurd custom is a feeling of honor which makes the foundation of that social intercourse which belongs to all civilized nations. It forms the controlling power of refined society in old Europe which does not rely upon police force for its own government. While in this country and in England we think it quite natural, for instance, that a girl who is left by her lover after the engagement should sue him for damages, such a step would be considered mercenary and low in Europe, where money is not regarded as an equivalent for honor, and where marriage is not looked upon simple as an equivalent for honor, the romantic spot generally chosen, bring every participant to the agreable delusion that something extremely interesting is going on and the contestants are led to believe themselves real heroes. But there is hardly more chance for injury in a pistol duel than in a journey over a well managed railroad. Besides this hazardous character of the pistol duel, which is due to the way it is managed, the woapon itself lacks another quality for a chivalrous contest: it offers no possibility for defense.

Fencing duels with any weapon are of a more dangerous character and therefore require more courage. Even when, as in certain notorious French duels, the first drop of blood drawn, no matter how slight a wound is inflicted, ends the contest, one has to look his enemy in the face for some time, and see the blade, ready to punish him, flash before his eyes. The most serious duel is that fought, with heavy curved sabers ("Krummsæbel,") which mostly inflict severe wounds. The duel is generally continued until one of the contestants is unable to go on. Many die in consequence er are crippled for life. The successful handling of the weapon requires coolness, presence of mind, skill of hand and an eye both sharp and quick.

The last-named weapons or pistols are chosen by German university students in case or a serious duel. The challenged one generally has the privilege of choice. If he is trained in fencing he will as a rule choose the saber. If his adversary can not handle the saber he may either change to platols, or size time will be given him to train himself in fencing. Before the adversaries are allowed to enter the field of battle, a court of honer composed of representatives of both parties must have decided that there is sufficient eause to justify a serious contest. To sabisfy the law, which requires the seconds to do their best to prevent the duel, when both parties stand ready the seconds on the spot advise the duelists to be reconciled. This, however, is a purely formal demand, and a duelist would expose himself to the greatest possible ridicule, should he follow this advice.

Although many things here said about the serious duelhold good also for the common students' duel, the latter, in Germany, is not regarded as a duel at all; indeed it is not called so. Its German, is not regarded as a duel at all; indeed it is not called so. Its German, is not regarded as a duel at all; indeed it is not called so. fined society in old Europe which does not rely upon police force for its own government. While in this country and in England we think it quite natural, for instance, that a girl who is left by her lover after the engagement should sue him for damages, such a step would be considered mercenary and low in Europe, where money is not regarded as an equivalent for honor, and where marriage is not looked upon simply as an affair of business.

One may call this prejudice, but the life of the highest society is built upon it, and a single person who calls the called a coward. Few would have and could be expected to have that highest moral courage, to stand for the sake of their opinions the scorn of those among whom they have grown up and with whom all their inclinations and interests are.

As I said before, this kind of duel is supposed to be of a more serious character. In many cases, however, it is simply a farce, entered upon to satisfy the demands of society. As a rule, a duel with pistols is a game of hazard; atming is not permitted, and one may be sure that often the witnesses fall to put bullets in the murderous weapons. So it is generally considered a very harmless affair. The start in the dusk itself is an educational force. As long as men have their passions courage will always be deemed a manly virtue; but how many have occasion to exercise it, how many fall in the reality in the moment of need! Not every one has a chance to have his courage tested, by saving some fellow-man from the danger of drowning, or from a burning house.

tested, by saving some fellow-man from a burning house.

This duel affords such a test. In it the contestant shows his mettle, and he comes out of it with strengthened self-reliance, which often, in later life, distinguishes him favorably from those who have never gone through such an experience. Take men of high standing in science and public life in Germany. You will find that a large number of such have taken a very active part in this juvenile sport. The pride, therefore, that some of these young men take in the scars which deface their countenance hardly deserves the sneer they so often get. It rather shows their chivalrous mind; they are prouder of these marks of manly character than of effeminate beauty. It is a fact that cowards, afraid of the scorn of their fellow-students, overcome their fear of pain, and after fighting two or three duels, wonderfully improve in their character, and may be placed afterwards in the same rank with their most courageous comrades. For it takes a great amount of self-control for a man, especially when he is bleeding with painful wounds, to stand unflinchingly for over an hour before his antagonist. "Unflinchingly" is used here in its strictest sense, for the slightest sound of pain, or movement of the hand, or even of the head under a heavy blow, will bring disgrace, both on him who bears himself so unmanly and on his friends, for whose colors he fights, and who surround him with anxious and tender looks. Besides testing courage, these contests foster self-control, presence of mind, self-reliance and feeling of solidarity, and so serve as useful discipline for later life.

These are the advantages of custom, which fathers with gray hair and the discipline for later life.

These are the advantages of custom, which fathers with gray hair and the mature judgment of years recall with pleasure in the home circle and encourage their sons to follow. After my remarks I hardly need mention that duels of either kind never gain the character of an exhibition. It is hard for an outsider to gain permission to witness them. Students who boast of their victories in duels are not the most respected, and no one who is not considered a gentleman is allowed to take active part in them.

It may seem strange that these duels, the holidays; but they have been neglected in this particular for a year or two. One reason for this neglect is that other than the veterans took the opportunity to get a free dinner, having no claim upon the generosity of the giver of the feast other than that they were acquainted with some of the veterans. Hence this way of remembering the old heroes five or six times a year with a feast ultimately became vexatious, and the Lelands and others could not be blamed for discontinuing the custom. The reunions of the "Veterans of 1812" have each year fallen off in attendance, however, and it is doubtful if there will ever be another.

Gen. Dally has seemed to surpass all of the others in physical strength as well as in length of life. He is in his ninety-fourth year and more hale and hearty than most men at 70. He was born in this city, but for more than forty years has lived in the eastern district of Brooklyn. He inherits longevity, his father living until he was 99 years old. Gen. Dally's wife, who was Ann Norman, came from a similar lineage of sturdy and prolific stock.

She lived for sixty-five years after her marriage, and raised a family of fifteen children. Although only five of the children are now living, the old veteran has more than fitty deceedants still in the fiesh, and he is a great-great-grandfather. His eldest son is about fit years old. The title of the old veteran is not, as many have supposed, one which he carned when in the war of 1812, but it is a complimentary title, and came to him by election to the command of the battalion of veterans upon the death of Gen. Raymond, a few years ago.

upon the death of Gen. Raymond, a few years ago.

Gen. Dally's father was a well to do ship chandler in this city, and for many years the son worked for him. But after the war the son held various positions under the government. At one time also Gen. Dally had a grocery at Hester street and the Bowery, at the time when Grand street was only a little more than a country road. His last business was running a restaurant in Williamsburg, more than twenty years ago. He is not by any means in independent circumstances, his only support coming from his government pension of 38 a month and some assistance from the veterans of the Mexican and the civil wars.—New York Tribune.

Life Sentences.

Fifteen years is about the average lifetime sentence, says a prison physician. Very few convicts, though sentenced for life, serve more than that period. They either die or are pardoned. In the Missouri prison there are five holiday pardons every year granted by the governor. One white and one negro convicts are pardoned on the Fourth of July, and two white and one negro convicts are pardoned on Christmas. The long termers get the benefit of this clemency. This Pheartily indorse. If fifteen years does not reform a man fifty years' imprisonment will not.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THER COSTLY HOSPITALITY

Delicate Love-making of Sis, ne Host's Daughter - She Could Handle a Hog With Ease and Dexterity.

I had been sent out as a newspaper correspondent and was riding a lean horse through a poor country, when, one blustery evening, I came within sight of an old double-log house that seemed to cling, with a sort of toe-nail seemed to cling, with a sort of toe-nan-hold, to the steep side of a hill. Almost a day had passed since I had seen a human habitation. The country had the appearance of dangerous wild-ness, and as a fearful night threat-

"Your conditions are not only easy bot are generous," said I, dismounting: "and I shall be grateful for your kindness."

"That's all right, for I'm a man among men. You'll meet many a feller a-w'arin' of a shirt that has been depicted in cream that will joltyo' pocket ever' chance he gits; an' then ag'in you may come across a man that never had no shirt biled in nutthin that would ruther give you a dime than to take one away from you. As be had been so kind—as he had given me shelter without charge—I could not refuse; so, accompanying Sis. I went up the hill side.

"I bet I kin dig faster than you." she said, as she stuck her ten-pound hee into the ground.

"I shouldn't be surprised. I am not much of a digger."

"Whut sir you best at?" she asked.
"I don't know."

How I did long for night to come. The hard work wasscarcely less wearying than the sickening talk of the girl. Once I told her that I should be compelled to go, but she shook her head gravely and said: "That would make pap awful mad. I forgot to tell you, but you musn't make pap mad. I was a sleep by the time I touched the bed that night, and having been too tired to think just before lying down, I dreamed of what a fool I had been in accepting any terms offered by the old man. On the following day I announced my firmly-fixed intention of leaving. The old man professed great astonishment. "What!" said he, "trifle with the affections of my family an' then leave us in the lurch."

I could only gasp in astonishment. "Wy, you promised to marry Sis," said he.

This staggered me. "Promised to marry her!" I exclaimed.

"When the horse had been cared for we went into the house, a tumble-down affair, and sat down to await the coming, at my host expressed it, of "mur and Sis." I took no particular notice of "mur" when she and "Sis" came, li was Sis that took my eya. She must have been six feet tall. The smoke from the chimney had made her eyes bleary, and the long green tobacco that she constantly chewed had drawn her mouth to one side. She wore an old boot and a brogan shoe, also a sort of blouse made of cetton bagging.

When we had sat down to supper, or rather when we had gathered about a board on which there were placed cora the for home barges, the host said:

"Sis is the greatest gal in all this here country, ain't you, Sis?"

"Now pap, whut do you wanter talk thater way, fur?" she replied, slicking a great finger in her crooked mouth. "You know I ain't never did nuthin."

Vienna's Petroleum Tramway.

Vienna has just been endowed with a novel means of locomotion, styled by its promoters the "Petroleum Tramway." It runs between the entrance to the Prater and the agricultural exhibition, a distance of nearly a mile, and accomplishes the journey in about five minutes. It can attain a speed of sixteen to seventeen kilometers an hour, but the authorities will not allow it to exceed twelve. The strength of the machine is of two-horse power. The petroleum fuel is lighted in a few minutes previous to starting, and the machine consumes one kilogram per hour. Reckoned at four-pence per kilogram the cost would be three shillings four-pence per ton hours. The car used in the Prater contains seats for twelve passengers, beside the driver and guard. It makes little noise, and does not shake. The inventor is an engineer in Cronstatt, named Daimler.—New York Telegram.

PARIS, Sept. 19.— [Special Correspondence.] There are few more interesting places in Paris to the student of human nature than the reading-room of the Bon Marche. A priest enters, seats himself at the long table, draws toward him a sheet of the paper dedicated to the use of fashion's gliddy votaries and writes a letter full, prevotaries and writes a letter full, pre-sumably, of spiritual instruction. Two sumably, of spiritual instruction. Two young Japanese students stroll about, looking at the pictures. An elegante from New York drops upon the piano stool and fingers a bar of a waitz tune. It is almost impossible to exaggerate the gorgeousness of these broades. One just finished for Mme. Carnot is of a cream color, striped with brown and silver, with a mass of golden blossoms thrown against this ground. The train is covered with a creamy tulle, spangled with silver and gold. The low bodice is draped with the same material, held in place by white camellias. Another brocade for a royal French princess—royal sounds well even if in France, or elsewhere, it means very little except pretty dresses, and not always these—is a heavy white stuff, over which are strewn pale green and purple passion flowers. The skirt is close-fitting, with the train put on in the back quite narrow, the front and sides going almost completely round the figure. The train is covered this is a device of the men milliners against sitting or to reduce still further the sime during which toilets keep their freshness—with the crushed petals of white roses, which cross the bosom, fringe the bodice and drop upon the skirt in trails.

A Paris house is just giving the last touches to some handsome dresses for a New York wedding. A waiking gown is made with the corselet bodice, which is the most fushionable device of the autumn. The material is a golden brown cloth wish corselets of brown velvet laced in front and pointed top and bottom, the skirt having a panel of the velvet overlaid with embroidery of slik guipure cord in shades of brown and gold, the sleeves high on the shoulders but cut below in a shape approximating the plain coat sleeves of days before puffs and glgots. A second street dress, pretty and simple, is of a dull electric gray with a smaller type of corselet like a Swiss belt, of a dove gray, lighter than the dress itself and almost entirely covered with a braiding of black and silver cord. This corselet is loose from the underarm seams and laces over a bodice that is gathered full both back and front, and that has Bolero straps about the armboles and a high dog collar closely covered like the corselet with braiding. The skirt has a full back and an apron front draped irregularly.

—There is a cause of peevishness in children which requires consideration, and that is the want of sufficient fresh air and bodily exercise. Healthy childid from are almost constantly in motion, and they require proportionatally more fresh air and out of door life than do adults. To shut them up in the house in badly ventilated and overheated pleasure to those about it.

Whatever the cause of peex inness in order that the present comfort of the no foundation be laid for querulousness

The island of Angada is one of the strangest of all the strange places in the world. It lies near the northeastern angle of the maje chain of the West Indies, and differs from all the other islands near it in being flat and low, the neighboring isles all being steep and mountainous. It is nine miles long and two miles across, and lies so low that its heavy gales the sea makes a clean breach over the lower portions of it, whence its name, for anegady is the Spanish for "drowned island." In 1881 it had 719 inhabitants, of whom only three were white people.

Its population is noted for idleness, and the main occupation for many years was wrecking—for an extensive and very dangerous coral feel surrounds the island and once gave it a very melancholy notoriety. But since the establishment of the lighthouse on the island of Sombrero (forty-seven miles to the eastward) there have been few, if any, wreeks on Anegada, since the main cause of the shipwrecks was the constant and swift current which sets upon the island from the east. Accordingly, the natives are now not often aroused by the cry of "a vessel on the reef," the only call in the cid days which would arouse them from their almost perpetual inactivity. In fact they are about the lasiest people in the West Indies, although that is saying a great deal.

Anegada used to be covered with underwood—notably of the kind called seaside grape, which here is particularly rich in the valuable gum called Jamaica kino. Anegada is the home of very numerous and singular tropical plants, but it is perhaps rather more noteworthy for its immense number of maquitoes, gallinippers and scorpions, not to speak of venomous and other reptiles. The surrounding seas are rich in scale and shell fish of many kinds. Among, its singular birds the abode of ducks which, on the approach of man, rise and fill the air with their clangorous cries. It is not an easy matter to reach the island.

A few years ago an attempt was made to open mines upon it, but nothing came of the effort but dismonintmen ceeded in both cases, and some people now predict that if the empress should happen to come over next year about. Whitsuntide she will be able to get the queen to patronize Ascot races.—London Truth.

The late James B. Eads was passing up the Mississippi river one day and stopped at a backwoods store on the banks of the river kept by an old German. The proprietor was at work chopping wood, but evidently in great grief. Tears rolled down his cheeks and he was sobbing as if his heart would break. His wife, he explained in broken dislect, was very ill—very ill. Mr. Eads consoled him as best he could and left. Returning six weeks later he found the erstwhile heart broken Tenton alive and chipper as a squirrel.

The wonderful thing about Macaulay was the perfect footing of equality on which he seemed to place whomsoever he talked to. To me, a young girl, he would say, "Don't you remember?" as if I had one-te-th the information he possessed in his little finger! Sometimes I ventured to interrupt him by saying, "No. I don't," when he would quote title of book, number of page and line, and advise me to read some work I had never heard of. BALVATION ARMY MARRIAGE.

Gen. Booth's Son Wedded in the Presence of a Crowd.

Gen. Booth's Son Wedded in the Presence of a Crowd.

London, Sept. 18.—A tremendous illustration of the power of the Salvation Army in this city and country was afforded today at the marriage of Commandant Herbert Booth, third son of Gen. Booth, and Capt. Carrie Schoch, a comely lassis of Dutch extraction. The ceremony took place at Clayton in as immense building known as Congress Hall, which is one of the Salvation Army's metropolitan head-quarters. For hours before the appointed time bands of Salvationists were streaming toward the hall from every side. Some came in gorgeous uniforms with crashing bands and waving banners. The immense room was in gala array, and every square foot of sitting and standing room was occupied by the valiant blow.

They love the music of your gurgling tone, and all the sunmer's butterfiles have flown where they may kiss the orystal of your lips. While in your waters cool the glad bird dips His wings and beak, and then away he files. Filled full of song and gladness, to the skies.

And here the happy children come, their feet Within your waters like waits lilles meet; They take the pebbles lying in your bed and toss them till they twinkle overhead like shing stars, so smooth and wet and round, Then laugh to see them lightly splashing down.

disciples. The enthusiasm passed all bounds as Gen. Booth appeared, leading the bride and groom. Finally the tumult wore itself out, and the general began the marriage service after the Salvationist fashloe. Turning to his son he asked: "Will you love her, comfort her, honor ber?"

"Yes," answered Herbert in a lond tone, and the general added, laughing: "If I thought he wouldn't he shouldn't have her."

This sentiment, as did most of what he said, called forth vociferous applause. The bride, simply dressed in the usual serge bonnet and gown, was then interrogated in turn, the general remarking playfully that it was not yet too late to retreat. Miss Schoch, however, very naturally persisted in the determination to change her name, and finally, amid wild hurrahs, the general clasped their hands and said: "Those whom God has joined together let no man or devil put asunder."

At this point the scene on the platform somewhat resembled the culminating point of a grand spectacular form somewhat resembled the culminating point of a grand spectacular ballet. The background was dense with the blue and scarlet uniforms of the excited Salvationists, while the venerable general, with white beard and hair in picturesque disorder, held over the heads of the newly-made couple a banner bearing the words "Blood and Fire." Here was the proper time for the collection, which was large, and then the bridegroom sang a song composed by the bride, who in turn sang one by the bridegroom, beginning, oddly enough: "Though walking on the troubled sea, I'm not afraid, I'm not afraid."

Mrs. Winslow's Success.
Mrs. Erving Winslow comes back from London with the British stamp of approval and a budget of crested letters that will enable her to carry her Ibsen work all over the American continent and reap social as well as financial success. The lady confines herself to draw-ing room interpretations of Ibsen's dramus. She dresses in "Beau Brumdramas. She dresses in "Beau Brummel" and Josephine gowns; the odor of violets clings to her draperies; she tiptilts her chin, throws her eyes, slopes her shoulders in the most graceful way and never raises her voice above the gentle conversational pitch. Her only "properties" are a small stand and a slipper chair. Mrs. Winslow is a very winsome lady, and if the whimsioal public does not stick a pin in the Ibsen balloon she will be the rage next winter. New York will be the rage next winter. - New Stories of Animals.

I am going to give you some stories of animals this week that I have picked up here and there. I am sure that you will enjoy them, and through them become better acquainted with the different animals of which they tell. The first story is from the St. Louis Globe Democrat; and it is a true coon story.

Democrat; and it is a true coon story.
It is as follows:
Several weeks ago he discovered that the roof of his residence on East Rallroad street, was leaking badly. On investigating he found that a number of shingles had been torn off in some unaccountable manner. All sorts of causes were assigned, but finally it was decided to lay the blame on one of the furious wind-storms which have visited Southern Illinois during last spring. Repairs were delayed for a week or more, until Mr. K. could find time to put on a new roof.

The coon caused the leak

In the pairs were delayed for a week or more, until Mr. K. could find time to put on a new roof.

Immediately after the discovery of the leak in the roof the family began to be alarmed by noises, which were heard not only at night-but at all times. No explanation could be given until finally, when work was commenced on the roof. Then a nest full of young raccoons was discovered just under the eaves. They were apparently about three weeks ago. The old one could not be found for a day or two, but finally she was driven from her shelter, treed by a dog, downed by boys and chased into a cage. There it remains, and is frequently visited by townspeople who want to see a coon that had courage enough to build her nest in such a strange place.

Local sportsmen were surprised at the occurrence, for it it contrary to all the accepted theories on coons to have one come into the very midst of a town to raise a family.

The next story that I give you is from the New York Times, and is about a goat which loved beer and to-bacco. So it would seem that there are sometimes topers among animals as well as men. This is what the paper has to say about this particular Hilly goat:

"Yes, sir, he is uncommon fond of the weed, is Billy," said a brawny blacksmith yesterday, standing in front of the anvil whereon lay a glowing horseshoe ready for the hammer. The "Billy" referred to was a middle-aged goat of rather disreputable ap-

Billy indulging in micotine.

Billy has several peculiarities, in which he goes far ahead of others of his species. In the first place, his appearance is decidedly striking. He is very large, with immense curling horns. His peard is yellowish and scraggly, and there is about him a general air of blase indifference—a dissipated look that probably comes from the highly articificial life hellends and the stimulants to which he is addiced. This latter characteristic—that of imitating his human associates in the use of tobacco and beer—is a particularly interesting part of Billy's make-up. Instead of devoting his time to the plebeian but useful tomato-can or rich and unwholesome theater bills. Billy consumes large quantities of tobaccoping, fine-cut or granulated. It is the custom for patrons of Billy's master to present the goat with a handful of chewing tobacco whenever they call and he has got so now that he acts very much like an untipped waiter if anybody neglects him.

His manner of chewing the tobacco is very peculiar. Heswallows it eagerly like so much grass, and really does not seem to get much of the good of it. A favorite way for him to indulge this infectine habit is by "hitting the pipe," so to speak. The older and richer the pipe the better Billy likes it. He gets somebody to hold the pipe for him and then greedily runs his long tongue down into the bowl and scoops up all the nicotine he can find. His passion for the stuff as so intense that he will poke his nose into any one's pocket after the pipe has been put away.

Billy also drinks beer with great gusto and has never been known to have enough. His physique does not seem, however, to have been injured by his excesses. He is, on the courtary, probably the healthlest and biggest goat south of Harlem River, and, moreover, has an extraordinarily peaceable and inoffensive disposition.

And here comes an account of a dog who was taken into court and who plead his own case better than any lawyer could have done. This happened in Hoston, which you know is Billy indulging in nicotine event Friday that filled the Municipal Court to everflowing with curious spectators. Judge Curtis presided. The defendant, Towser, a handsome setter, belonging to Nathan Simmons, a South End salcon keeper, was charged with having a victous and savage disposition, "dangerous to the peace and bodily weal of the good citizens of this commonwealth."

To prove this, Hilmoth Hess swore that the dog, had bitten him without provocation, and he wanted the handsome animal killed. Towser's owner demurred, and the court summoned Towser to prove his good character, and he was forthwith brought into court and installed in the pen.

Towser convinces the judge.

His master retained able counsel for nim, and, amid the fitter of the audience and the smiles of Judge Curtis, the trial began. The plaintiff told how he was bitten, but acknowledged that he had provoked Towser by teasing him. Others came forward, and, after explating on Towser's good qualities, the prisoner himself was brought forward in his own behalf.

At various commands he played dead, walked on his hind legs about the room, stood on his head, shouldered arms, whined dismally in imitation of a song and wound up by marching up the steps to the judge's desk on his hind legs and shaking paws with his Honor.

The latter was greatly tickled, and without hesitating said, amid cheers: "Towser, you are a peaceable and orderly canine. I give judgment in your behalf and dismiss you, the plaintiff paying the costs."

That was a very wise judge, I think, and a wise dog, too. dience and the smiles of Judge Curtis,

The next story that I give you is from the Sporting and Dramatic News, and is about a baboon which became a signalman, and did his work as well as a man could have done:

The baboon which figures in the illustration is a well-known character in the Cape Colony, but more particularly in the neighborhood of Port Elizabeth. The history attaching to him is a curious and probably unique one. The signalman, his owner, was through no fault of his own, run over by a passing train and had to have both legs amputated, which would naturally incapacitate him from work; but the idea struck him to secure a baboon and train him to do his work. This he has successfully accomplished, and for many years the one in question has regularly looked after the levers and done the hard work of his afflicted master. The animal is possessed of extraordinary incalingence, and has never made niarly looked after the levers and done, the hard work of his afflicted master. The animal is possessed of extraordinary intelligence, and has never made a mistake. Of course, the human servant works the telegraphs, and the baboon the levers, according to instruction; and, taking into consideration the fact that, at the station in question, Uttenhage Junction, and shout twenty miles from Port Elizabent twenty miles from Port Elizabent twenty miles from Port Elizabent wenty miles from Port Elizabent wenty miles from Port Elizabent wenty miles from Port Elizabent.

strong protest against the employme of the animal on the score of risk accident, but the baboon has never y failed during his many years of wor and on more than one occasion hacted in a manner simply astoundit to those who never had personal exprience of the intelligence of the brutes. One of his most notwort performances was the correct switcing of an unannounced special traon its correct line in the absence the signalman. The latter lives mile up the line, and the babo pushes him out and home, morning a night, and is the sole companion of legless master. Our picture is from photograph by G. W. Smart of PC Elizabeth, and, although depicting the baboon in a somewhat theatrical at tude, is from life, and gives a capit likeness of both man and monkey.

And now one more story and I am done for this week. We will close with the tale of a brave kangaroo:

A very pathetic story comes from Australia, describing a kangaroo's daring for the sake of her young. The owner of a country station was sitting one evening on the balcony outside his house, when he was surprised to notice a kangaroo lingering about, alternately approaching and retiring from the house, as though half in doubt and fear what to do. At length she approached the water pails, and, taking a young one from her pouch, held it to the water to drink. While her baby was satisfying its thirst, the mother was quivering all over with excitement, for she was only a few feet from the balcony on which one of her great foes was sitting watching her. The little one having finished drinking, it was replaced in the pouch, and the old kangarco started off at a rapid pace. When the natural timidity of the kangarco is taxen into account.

witness was so affected by the scene that from that time forward he could never shoot at a kaugargo.

I think we should all of us feel more sympathy with animals if we knew them better. We should find that they are tender-hearted and affectionate, and we should not like to harm them.

Mass-meeting at the Central Courch.

LARGE AUDIENCE PRESENT.

Addresses by the Various Pastors The Sunday School Convention this Evening-The Programme, Etc.

A mass-meeting of the members of all of the Baptist churches of the city was held last evening, under the auspices of the Executive Committee of the Los Angeles Baptist Sunday School Convention, at the First Church, at the corner of Sixth street and Broadway. All told eight churches were represented in the assemblage. The church edifice was specially decorated for the occasion. The attendance was very large, the church being crowded. The various divines occupied seats behind the pulpit.

The services of the evening opened with an organ voluntary by Miss Emma F. Rider, after which the doxology was sung by the congregation.

Rev. C. H. Auderson, of the Second Baptist Church (colored,) invoked the divine blessing upon the meeting. At the the conclusion of the prayer, hymn "Hallelujah on the Cross" was sung by a double quartette. Scripture reading by Rev. N. Hayland of the Swedish Baptist Church was followed by prayer by Rev. W. W. Tinker, formerly of the East Los Angeles Baptist Church, but now home geles Baptist Chürch, but now home missionary for Southern California.

After the singing of the hymn "Onward, Christian Soldiers," by the congregation, Rev. Tinker delivered a brief address upon "Our Cause at Paso Robles." He referred to the fact that this was the first time in the history of the denomination that all of the Baptist ministers of the city were congregated upon the same platform at a service. He thought that this was an auspicious moment to make a plea for the twelve or fourteen Baptists who were holding protracted meetings at Paso Robles. He asked that a liberal contribution be given the workers, and his request was very generously acceded to, as a large contribution was raised at once.

Mrs. Orr Haralson gave a beautiful rendition of the solo, "Love Divine."

Rev. W. H. Pendleton of the East Los Angeles Baptist Church spoke very feelingly upon the subject, "Union in Faith." He said that he thought the key-note of the mass-meeting was union; preliminary to the great convention of Baptists to be held this week. He stated that union in faith wention of Baptists to be held this week. He stated that union in faith characterized all the churches of Christ down to the apostolic age. After and during the apostolic age it was ever the same. There was no dissension, no divisions—all were in Christ's faith. Beyond three centuries following the apostolic age there seemed to have been a blank. But to-day the church stands unified in the one faith, which is really the Baptist heritage. "Baptists never quarrel," said Rev. Pendleton. "They sometimes have to withstand each other, but they never quarrel."

The congregation sang the hymn, "Be Ye Strong in the Lord," after which Rev. William Appel, of the German Baptist Church, spoke on the subject "Union in Sympathy." Mr. Appel stated that in an earthly kingdom union begot strength and power, but in the kingdom of God union begot invincibility. Sympathy is, he said, feeling for others, be it joy or sorrow. In the members of Christ's body there was downright sympathy is, he said, feeling for others, be it joy or sorrow. In the members of Christ's body there was downright sympathy is, he said, feeling for others, be it joy or sorrow. In the members of Christ's body there was downright sympathy is, he said, feeling for others, be it joy or sorrow. In the members of Christ's body there was downright sympathy. If the church was bound together with this material nothing could break the ranks. It must not be human sympathy, but that sympathy that comes from above, from Christ himself. He closed with an appeal to the Lord to give the Baptists union in sympathy.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION. This evening the Los Angeles Baptist Association will open its annual session in this city at the Central Baptist Church, corner of Third and Hill streets. The association comprises all of the Baptist churches in the coun-or the Saptist endress in the countries of San Diego, San Bernardino, Orange and Los Angeles.

The session will open with a Sunday school convention, which will take up Monday evening and all of Tuesday.

In this connection a little information In this connection a little information as to the Baptist denomination and belief is not only of interest but likewise appropriate: As to their form of government it is As to their form or government it is Democratic—every member has a vote and voice in the affairs of the church. Their origin is hid in the depths of antiquity. The Puritans, driven by persecution from the Old World, in turn became persecutors. Roger Williams in Massachusetts insisted upon allowing entire freedom of conscience, and upon the entire separation of and upon the entire separation of church and state. He was banished, and in 1636 he founded a new society at Providence, B. I. No claim is made however, that Roger Williams founded the Baptist Church. But the founded the Baptist Church. But the point is made that the Baptists can trace their origin back to Christ, who is the founder. No mention is made in the Bible to Calvin, Luther, Robinson, Wesley or Campbell. But the Bible did make repeated reference to John the Baptist.

THE LAMP EXPLODED.

Small Fire at Georgia Bell and Ninth Streets-Firemen Injured. Last night at 8 o'clock an alarm of fire was turned in from box 16 by Officer Todd, caused by the explosion of a lamp in the residence of a groceryman named Spears, at Georgia Bell and Ninth streets. Mr. and Mrs. Spears went to church and left the children at home. The youngsters upset the lamp and ran out of the house crying and ran out of the house crying "Fire!" Several neighbors went to their assistance, and the fire was put out before the department arrived.

As the hook and ladder was leaving its quarters on Aliso street, the hind wheels ran over a dog, and Romero, the tiller man, was thrown from his seat. Before he could regain his place and steer the wagon the hind wheels struck the side of the door and threw Henry Sheerer and "Billie" Pryor from their seats. Pryor's fingers were badly their seats. Pryor's fingers were badly crushed and Sheerer was considerably crushed and Sheerer was considerably bruised.

As the truck passed the corner of First and Spring streets one of the horses fell down, and after sliding some twenty feet, came to a standatili. The horse was immediately gotten on his feet, and as nothing serious was the matter the boys in charge proceeded on their way.

SINGULAR COINCIDENCE.

Serious Accident to Mr. Putnam of the East Side.

By a singular coincidence Mr. Putam, the husband of Mrs. Putnam, who was seriously injured Saturday by falling down the stairway of Odd Fellows building on Spring street, was himself the victim of an accident on the same day As soon as it was found Mrs. Put-nam was injured her husband was notified in East Los Angeles, where he was engaged. He immediately jumped on a pony which he had near at hand. He did not even stop to put on a sad-dle, but dashed over the bridge and up San Fernando, New Main and Main street, intent only upon reaching his wife as soon as he could. In front of Heintzman's drug store his horse slipped on the pavement and fell upon him. In falling he received an ugly scalp wound. His arm and leg were also crushed. The injured man was taken into the drug store and his injuries attended to. He was then taken to his residence in a hack, arriving there about the same a hack, arriving there about the same time his wife did in a similar vehicle.

"SISTER ROSE."

Why She Was Removed from the Leper Hospital. Some time ago there was considerable comment in the newspapers about a young and beautiful English girl, the daughter of an English clergyman, going to Honolulu, where she intended to devote her life to the care of the lepers at that place. The woman was known as Sister Rose, and the horrors of her life at the leper settlement were feelingly set forth. After a while it was announced that Sister Rose had given up her self-imposed task and year given up her self-imposed task and re-turned to the world which she had vol-untarily renounced. This fact was also widely published, but was soon forgotten.

A well-known official of Honolulu, who is now in Los Angeles, throws some additional light on the subject. He says that the Catholic Sisters never recognized Sister Rose as one of them-selves, although she wore the garb of their order, and that the cause of her resignation was the result of an inves-tigation made by the board on charges preferred against her by officials connected with the hospital, accusing her of intimacy with one Dr. Lutz, physician to the board.

RAILROAD BUSINESS.

A Fine Field for Ambitious Young Men.

HOW THEY ACHIEVE SUCCESS

The Qualifications that Go to Make Up a Good Railroad Man-The Course of Train-ing, Etc.

"What trade or profession shall I se-lect for my son?" is a question that is asked by hundreds of parents daily. Twenty-five years ago this was a bard question to answer, but today there are thousands of openings for boys.

During the past few years railroads have sprung up all over the country, and there are thousands of employes receiving salaries ranging from $40 a month to $50,000 a year.

There are more good positions in the railroad business than almost any calling, and the early training is such that a boy can hardly escape becoming a man if he has any ability whatever.

Almost all of the successful railroad men started at the beginning and worked their way up, and this is the only way to make a useful railroad man. The market is so great that it will never be glutted, and the line of promotion is sure and rapid if the beginner is made of the right kind of stuff.

promotion is sure and rapid if the beginner is made of the right kind of stuff.

It might not be uninteresting to know how railroad men are made. In the first place, a strong healthy boy—for it takes a fine constitution to insure success, secures a situation in a big railroad office as messenger boy, at a salary from three to ten dollars a week.
The first thing he is taught is obedience, and after he has been in the office a year or two he has learned to be sober, industrious and loyal to the interests of his superior officers. He becomes thoroughly wrapped up in the business, or if he does not he is told that he had better seek other employment; for his superiors, who have gone over the steps he is now taking, watch him much closer than he supposes, and if he fails in his duties they are the first ones to note it, and they are the first ones to note it, and they are quick to take him up, for they have use for him higher up and the first thing he knows he is being promoted in a way that would have astonished his grandfathers.

Old railroad men are close students of human nature, and they soon know what branch of the business the boy is best suited to, and he soon finds himself in the department for which he has a taste.

If he is cut out for the operating de-set of the second the second and him belight to exist as a church in the peculiar of the business he soon becomes a hard as iron and lays the foundation for good health. Here, it is a hard student and attentive to his business he finds promotion easy and rapid. He is so hard attentive to his business he finds promotion easy and rapid. METHODISTS AT SANTA BARBARA presiding.

Annual Conference of the M. E. Church Now in Session. SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 26.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The anniversary of the Freedman's Aid Society was held last evening, Rev. Dr. Cox

The chief speaker of the evening was Rev. G. Gray, D. D., of New York. His theme was, "The salvation of the freedman demanded on behalf of our freedman demanded on behalf of our country, the church and humanity." The doctor give a most eloquent address, in which he stated that he stood in New York just prior to the last election and saw a procession moving along, 9000 persons passing each-hour; for four hours. Yet if a similar procession should be formed of the illiterate voters of the South, it would take from one Saturday at 2 p. m. until the next Saturday at noon for them all to pass by, at the rate of 9000 each hour. It was proposed by some to ship them to Africa. But, if all the ships of our navy were crowded with negroes and sent to dump them down in Africa, before they could return for the second load, more negro babies would be born than the number removed. The address was a most earnest appeal to educate and save them as the only solution of the difficulty.

The young men to be received into the ministry were called, viz: George W. Wood, F. M. Larkin, L. G. Spring and J. G. I am anxious that you understand the kind of church you are joining, our internal economy, and why we challenge the right to exist as a church in the world. In pointing out the peculiar features of our church I shall avoid any bigotry. We must distinguish between denominationalism and sectarianism. The first characteristic of the church you wish to join is its expediency. We don't like that word. But there is a difference between expediency and Christain expediency. Romanism claims that its whole ecclesiastical system is divine. This explains its power over its communicants. Our organization is as far apposite to that as darkness to sunlight and sunlight to darkness. We are anxious for a church which can be changed so as to adapt itself to the times, and is able most successfully to bring men to God. While we have restrictive rules to conserve doctrine, we can readily change our polity. We don't believe every part of machinery is divine, so that we must not touch it; we are only anxious that God may drive the machinery, no matter what wided our heritage; for the sake of the truth we suffered our church to be cut asunder. We must preserve this character. The church must not lag behind in its sympathy with humanity. Another characteristic of our church is that it is a revival church and catholic. Catholic in that it is universal, spreading throughout the world; also in doctrine. Let us also be catholic in spirit.

A WEEK'S CALIFORNIA WINNERS

Baldwin's Horses Doing Good Work-Trotting Records Smashed-Nelson's Great Race-

The past week among the California runners East has been an unusually good one, and quite a number have galloped to the front and secured fair purses. Baldwin's Sinaloa and Los Baldwin's Sinaloa and Los Angeles, Hearst's Rhono, Smith's Al Farrow, and the California-bred Dr. Hashrouck, have all been winners during the past week. Los Angeles won the second Gravesorid special in rather easy style on last Saturday, as the track was muddy and heavy and just suited the Baldwin mare, who easily defeated Eon and Prince Royal. Kingston, Racine, Eric, Reporter, and other famous racers were entered in the same event racers were entered in the same event but were scratched, owing to the heavy track. Racine has now fully recovered from his recent illness, and will soon be winning brackets for himself. The Undine stable, which contains Homer, Racine, Rinfax, and other good horses, has been unusually unfortunatenearly all of the horses have been off in their work and consequently the stable has not been earning any money.

Homer, in a race at Gravesend on last Saturday a week ago, was leading in the stretch, but when within a few hundred feet of the wire he fell and lost the race. He had been heavily backed and the accident cost his admirers a good many dollars. but were scratched, owing to the beavy

The Westchester course at Morris Park, New York, opens on October 1st, and continues until October 15th. Among the stakes to be run are the Hickory and Elms stakes, both with $10,000 added money. In both stakes a large number of California horses are entered.

The week among the trotters has witnessed the breaking of two records: Nelson, the winner of the stallion stakes at Boston last year, broke the stallion record, trotting a mile at Kankakee, Ill., in 2:11½, beating Axtell's time a half a second, and three-quarters of a second faster than Pale Alto or Stamboul. Faustino also lowered the 2-year-old stallion record to 2:23½. has been repeatedly characterized as a steal and as a fixed race, and Nelson, his owner, has been badly handled by the press, but in the light of his revent performance, it will convince all that the horse really won on his merits.

That grand California mare, Margaret S, reeled off another half-mile at Stockton in 1:04½, next to Sunoi, who did the distance in 1:02½. Margaret S is the fastest mare on the turf today.

The local fair opens Octo ber 6th in this city, and will bring here some of the best trotters, pacers and runners in the State. The $1000 purse, distance three-fourths of a mile, will undoubtedly attract a large n amber of the fastest runners on the count.

Jack Dempsey has agreed to meet Fitzsimmons in New Orleans for the middle-weight championship. If the fight does come off, it looks as though Dempsey would lose the championship. He is now on the downward grade, and iff Fitzsimmons he will meet a man of superior ability. His easy victory over McCarthy proves him to be the most dangerous opponent Dempsey has KENILWORTH.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

The City's Contract - Councilma Bonsall's Figures.

The electric light contract does not ome before the Council today, as was stated yesterday. The advertisement for bids is now running, and the question of the contract can only come up after bids are received. Councilman Bonsall disclaims having stated that a fifty-light dynamo placed in the basement of the City Hall, where we have engineers employed, would save the city $46,000 per year out of $60,000. What he did say, haddeclares, was that a fifty-light dynamo could be put in at an expense of $8000, and that such an action would be a simple and inexpensive test for the benefit of the taxpayers; that it would light the entire business portion of the city. A 100-light dynamo can be put in full running order for $15,000. Mr. Bonsall further says, in a note to The Times: "If the city were to own its own plant and were to light the entire city, it might be discovered that the resources from commercial lighting, also the various public buildings, which should be credited to the account, would make it selfsustaining, or almost so. In that event we would have nothing to pay except interest on the plant."

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

The Fifth Ward Contest. FIFTH WARD, LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I am not and never have been a hot par tisan of either side in the too-familiar 'Boyce" and "anti-Boyce" conflict which, to the general disgust, has been freshly revived by the recent attempt of that rather unfortunate person to come to the front again in politics.

But I am bound to say, impartially, and without a particle of persona feeling in the case, that the action of Mr. Boyce at yesterday's primary elecfeeling in the case, that the action of Mr. Boyce at yesterday's primary election in this ward, in opposing so bitterly as he did the candidacy of the Hon. W. F. Fitzgerald for delegate, was an act not creditable to him. It was not an act of personal gratitude, but the opposite. It was not an act of personal loyalty, but the reverse. It was not an act of good faith, but of bad faith. And why? Because it is a notorious fact, known to all who are familiar with proceedings in our criminal courts, that this unfortunate man today probably owes his immunity from immurement in a prison to the professional exertions and the courtesy of Judge Fitzgerald. The latter may not have, nor have had, any special personal liking for the "smooth citizen," as The Times is wont, in its sarcasm, to denominate him. I do not know as to the judge's personal attitude, but it is certain that he put forth his best efforts in Boyce's behalf when the latter was in extreme legal peril, in Judge Shaw's court, on the grave charge of blackmail.

And it is further pretty well established, that had it not been for the gallant and chivairic lawyer's ingenious (I will not say just) defense of "the prisoner at the bar." the latter might today be in the service of the State, and wearing the peculiar garb might today be in the service of the State, and wearing the peculiar garb which distinguishes many of the denizens of San Quentin.

Under the circumstances, therefore, not so soon have placed himself across the pathway of his benefactor; the more especially as Judge Fitzgerald is known to be a close and trusted friend and representative of Col. Markham, the Republican nominee for Governor; and his (Fitzgerald's) defeat would have had more than a personal signifi-cance; it would have been looked upon as a direct blow at Markham. But as it turned out, Judge Fitzgerald was triumphantly elected, and his unhandome and ungrateful opponent was 'completely snowed under,' to use the language of the political arena.

FIFTH WARD REPUBLICAN.

Prominent Republican's Democratic

Los Angeles, Sept. 28.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] The following appeared in the Herald yesterday morning under the heading "A Seventh Warder's Talk:"

enth Warder's Talk:"

A prominent Republican who will back up what he says, said to a Herald reporter last evening: "This is the most disgrace-rail political contest I ever saw in this city. The Central Committee and the slate candidates, several of whom are on the committee, carried things their own way, by the aid of macs and hoodlums. In the Seventh Ward they gave us judges that no one knew. Affidavits against the character of one of these caused his removal, but they put in another of whom we knew nothing, and today they all stood in with the heelers. I challenged about twenty men, but it made no difference; a man would cry out 'I'll youch for him,' and the clubs would call out 'voted.' Why, I saw George Flint, who is a delegate from the Eighth Ward, vote in the Seventh, and I could cite instances of trickery and dishonesty all night to you. I say frankly that if the Democrats nominate good men, I and a lot of other disgusted Republicans will vote for them."

Diligent inquiry was made at the ed-

Diligent inquiry was made at the editorial room of the Herald to ascertain the name of "a prominent Republican" who will "back up" what is alleged in the above article. It is not surprising that a Republican who has to air his grievances through a Democratic error, should be desirous Democratic organ should be desirous of not having his name divulged. However, from the painful tone of the article we can come to but one conclusion as to the name of "a prominent Republican." That the article is false in every particular is unquestioned, and we can bring dozens of good, reputable citizens to so certify.

George Flint is ready to make affidavit that he did not vote in the Seventh Ward port of about a dozen "macs" and toughs. Now, that he has gone to the Democrate seeking comfort, we can only say, "good riddance to bad rubbish."

It pained a certain "prominent Republican" when he learned that the leaders of the party in the Seventh Ward were determined to have an honest election and a fair count. He received the sympathy of a lovely politician, who assumed the guardianship of affairs early in the morning, and who also tried to manipulate affairs with a fine Italian hand, but since his aspirations have been so thoroughly chilled by his being defeated as a delegate to the State Convention by a colored gentleman, he has been relegated to the rear by the honest leaders of the party. Last Saturday his disreputable methods were early discovered and he was accordingly deputized to keep "a prominent Republican" company. In conclusion, let me advise those pained and lovely politicians, including a certain governor, that men whose questionable methods have prompted them to keep their property in the names of their nieces, cousins and aunts, whose political methods have left them blackened monuments of trickery and fraud, to either reform and practice honesty, both in business and politics, or else openly go to the Democratic fold, where they can prac-

Sugar has been addifferent light. Sugar has been admitted free from the islands, still the consumers get no benefit. I well remember how I had hoped to get cheap sugar, but it remained at the same price or went higher, the great profits going into the capacious pockets of Spreckels to build ocean steamers and buy and manage great plantations with coolie and Kanaka labor—virtually slave labor—to foster a gigantic monopoly, holding sugar at a price just as high as possible to keep out Eastern sugar and bleed the whole Pacific Coast.

If Spreckels had furnished sugar at a fair profit then the Sandwich Islands and the United States would both have been benefited.

For Clean Politics. PROPOSED ELECTRIC ROAD.

A Suggestion for the City's Proteo

In the following letter has been addressed to The Times on this subject.

Los Angeles, Sept. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times.] I notice that an application has been filed with the City Council for the granting of a franchise for an electric railroad. If franchise for an electric railroad. If the franchise sought to be obtained it to have a claim or right over the many public thoroughfares or streets men-tioned in the application, it is certainly a perfect network of railway system encircling this city, with branch feed-ers to and from every important point. That this is a very valuable franchise there is not the least doubt, and if such the it is entitled to great considers. there is not the least doubt, and if such it be, it is entitled to great consideration at the hands of the Council, to see that this city's interests are well protected, and therefore it should act carefully and wisely in so important a measure. Off-handed I would favor the granting of the franchise, for if the parties are sincere and mean business the work will involve an outlay of about two millions of dollars. Much of this sum will be expended in this city within the next three years. The test of sincerity could not be more certainly established than by the giving of a good and satisfactory bond of 5 per Under the circumstances, therefore, it seems to me that, however ambitious he may be for political and social rehabiliment, Mr. Boyce should not have so far forgotten his obligations to the defender of his person against the outraged majesty of the law. He should time of the acceptance of the franchise. Certainly any individual or company to undertake to do a work of this mag-nitude successfully, must be well prepared with large capital, and as such it would not be hard or difficult to furan article in the Philadelphia Press I nish the proper bond. REFERRING to the success of efforts made for the retention of army headquarters in Los Angeles, the esteemed but highly-partisan Herald says: The thanks of the people of Los Angeles are due, primarily, to the Chamber of Commerce, and to Gens. Miles, Grierson and McCook.

The words, and Col. H. H. Markham, would doubtless have been added by the Herard were Col. Markham not the Republican candidate for Governor.

AFTER all the depreciatory remarks which have been made by Americans of the European railroad system, it appears that one of our Eastern roads is about to adopt some of its peculiarities in a modified form. New cars are to be built, with doors at the sides, instead of the ends, and without platforms. The doors are to be locked between stations. The latter provision is a dangerous one, which has been unsparingly condemned by American travelers in Europe, and it is not probable that it will be submitted to by the traveling public of the United

THE LEGISLATURE.

We have heretofore commented on the gross negligence which is com-monly displayed in the selection of men to represent the people of the State in the Legislature. The importance of the subject and the nearness of the date when selections will have to be made warrant a recurrence to

When we consider the vast importance of the interests which these men represent at the State capital, the responsibility of their position as framers of laws for one of the grandest States in the Union, as disbursers of the State's funds to the amount of many millions of dollars, and as persons charged with the high duty of selecting a United States sehator to represent the State at Washington, it is really surprising that so little care should be taken in their nomination and election. When the man who has not become case-hardened in the school of ward politics thinks of the legislators of a great Sta'e, his mind naturally reverts to those noted law-givers of olden times, whose names are emblazoned upon the perpetual roll of fame, and, while not expecting that we can always obtain such leading minds to serve us in the halls of the Legislature, he at least pictures to himself a body composed of able, dig-nified, self-respecting men; men of ripe experience, and of established reputation in the districts which they represent. How utterly at variance with this conception of the case the facts are, it is unnecessary to inform anyone who has attended a recent session of the California Legislature at Sacramento. The last things which seem to be thought of in selecting legislative candidates are ability, dignity or fitness for the position. Age and experience are considered trifles totally unnecessary, if indeed, they are not positive drawbacks. All that is considered necessary is the possession of a sufficient "pull" on the local bosses and an easy conscience, which will permit its possessor to assist in grinding a private axe, regardless of the interests of the taxpayers. wherever there is any money in it. stay bought." Under such circumstances, it is little wonder that a session of the Legisla-ture is often, practically, a protracted saturnalia of corruption and debauchery, amidst which even those who go there with honest intentions are swamped and carried off in the stream, or rendered powerless for good. Such was the last Legislature, which cost the State the enormous sum of $12,000,000. Will the next be any better? It is for the citizens to say. So far, in this section, there has been a remarkable paucity of names men-tioned for the Legislature, which could be unqualifiedly indorsed. Yet this should not be the case. The position is an honorable one, worthy the ambition of any citizen. It opens further fields for talent and probity. There are certainly good men who would be willing and proud to serve the people in this capacity, but such men are not to be found running around and pulling wires to secure their nomination. They must be sought out and brought forward, and it will well repay the people to do this.

One thing is certain. The party which puts up weak or bad men for the Legislature will find them beaten, provided there are better men on the other side. There is a loud call, just now, by the people, for decency in office, municipal, county and State, and if they can't find it in one party they

A SAN FRANCISCO EDITOR'S PRICE.

A subsidized editor of San Francisco one Heazelton of the hired Posttakes exceptions to our criticism of the efforts of Senator Stanford's clacquers to boom him into the Senate "because he has given the people of California the Leland Stanford, Jr., University, and has endowed it with twenty millions of dollars." Now it is the exaggeration of this whole matter that we have criticised, because it is upon this exaggerated basis that the subsidized agents of Mr. Stanford claim that he is entitled to be returned to the Senate. No claim is made by the Post, or any of the other paid organs, that Mr. Stanford has any fitness for a seat in the Senate, because they know he has not: nor because of any thing he has State, for he has done nothing, except draw salary for services never rendered. The whole claim of Mr. Stanford narrows itself down to the demand that he be seated in the Senate because he has given twenty million dollars to a monument to the name of his dead son. Let us see about this.

Editor Heazelton claims, in an editorial, that Mr. Stanford has spent a million dollars on the University this year. Editor Heazelton and his master cannot produce receipts for two hundred thousand dollars which have been spent this year on the buildings of the Leland Stanford, Jr., University on the Palo Aito Rancho. THE NEW ELECTRIC RAILROAD FRANCHISE,

The question of granting the fran-chise to the new electric railroad company will be before the Council today. The names which appear upor the bond of the company are certainly those of men of high standing, and, as already stated, if there is a surety that the programme, as laid out by the incorporators, will be carried out in good faith, the proposition should re-ceive the favorable consideration of the city government. That proviso should, however, by no means be lost sight of, and more especially so because the new company will, to a great ex-tent, come in direct competition with the existing cable system, upon which over a million and a half of dollars in hard cash has been expended. Care should be taken that the business of this great enterprise, in which Angeleños take a justifiable pride, is not needlessly injured, while the public receives no corresponding benefit. In other words the Council should satisfy itself that the new incorporation intends to build its line and not to use its franchise as a weapon with which to extort tribute.

Another question which should be looked into is that of the poles, which, it appears, are to be used along the route, in place of the storage system, as was first understood. Not only poles, but wooden poles. If poles are permitted at all on such streets as Main, Spring and Broadway, they should be as light and graceful as pos-sible, or the City of Angels will look like a pine forest struck by lightning, especially at the street corners, of which over fifty are turned on the route.

The rights asked for are very valuable, and the Council can afford, with good grace, to investigate these matters very closely before granting the franchise, without any fear that it will be charged with non-progressive ideas. While we have no reason to doubt the statement that the company is anxious to commence work without a day's delay, and while it may also be true that there are tempting offers from other cities, still, in a matter of such vast impor-tance, entailing a fifty-years' right-ofway over nearly all the principal streets of the city, there is certainly no reason. able ground to refuse deliberation, or to believe that a delay of a week or two can affect the undertaking proju-dicially, more especially as it is understood that the existing street railway company does not yet pay expenses, and it is therefore scarcely presumable that the new company could earn any dividends for several years to come. Let us first be sure we are right in this matter, "and then go ahead. POLITICAL BLACKMAILERS.

One of the chief obstacles which pre vent many respectable and available citizens from entering the field as candidates for official preferment is the systematic blackmail which is levied upon aspirants, from the moment when their decision to enter the lists is announced. There is a crowd of disreputable harpies who appear to live from election to of politics. And they are right.

It is high time that legislative material, adequate in quality and quantity, came to the front in this county. The convention is near at hand. It will require room to make its selections.

or the reputed size of his sack. Such tribute is levied for promised "influence" in various forms—for personal efforts of ward strikers and netty bosses: for the votes of "piece which spring up like mushclubs,' rooms during every campaign, and for paragraphic puffs in journals of more than doubtful reputation and still less circulation. There is special activity just now in Los Angeles in the latter branch of the political blackmail business. We desire to warn candidates on this subject—to warn them in a double sense. If they submit to the exactions of these freebooters, they will not only waste their money-for journals which really possess influence done as Senator for the people of this do not peddle it around in this manner -but they will also bring upon themselves the suspicion and condemnation of reputable members of their party and contribute to their own defeat. In supporting such despicable blackmailers, they are encouraging them to make further attacks, and thus injuring their confreres on the ticket in a manner which these gentlemen have a right to resent.

We know what we are writing about in this connection; we have a special instance in view, and we give fair notice that we intend, if necessary, to publish a full expose of journals which exact such blackmail, and of candidates who pay it.

YESTERDAY was a murky, moist, close, warm, cloudy day-one of those days so very exceptional in this section, but which, during the summer, are the rule in a great portion of the Eastern and Southern States, The rare occurrence—perhaps three or four times a year-of such a day teaches us to pity the residents of Eastern cities and to appreciate the glorious climate which we enjoy. Even yesterday, however, nightfall brought its usual cooling breeze and refreshing atmosphere, rendering a blanket necessary for comfortable repose.

By Telegraph to The Times. WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 .- [By the Associated Press.] In two or three days the long session of the Fifty-first Congress will come to an end. It has been almost the longest ever held. Although the first session of the Fiftieth Congress lasted until October 25th, the present session, by reason of the longer daily sessions, has far exceeded it in working time, and the amount of legislative work actually omplished has been extraordinary, viewed in the light of the previous Congress. The record so far is:
Bills and joint resolutions introduced Tolstol and Ingersoll Compared.

The editorial in last Sunday's Press on marriage, evidently based on Tolstoi's recent publication, induced me to purchase and peruse the book. I am surprised that this man's theories have not received more criticism in the daily press. He does to marriage pre-cisely what Ingersoll does to religion, picks it to pieces, scoffs at it and, herein appears another similarity to herein appears another similarity to Ingersoll, he has nothing better to offer. Love, while perhaps not easy to define, is hardly what he steadfastly endeavors to prove it—gross sensuality, nothing more, nothing less. God is said to be love and the Bible tells us that God is a spirit. Can any human mind conceive of a spirit as possessed of lust? Adam and Eve fell, but does history, sacred or profane record the fact, that sacred or profane, record the fact, that in the fall, man was relegated to the level of the beasts of the field? We are made in the likeness of the image of God. As we must therefore posses in some measure, the attributes of our Maker, how chimerical the theory of "total depravity!" This man would have us believe disruption threatens the homes of all. If Helen had no the homes of all. If Helen had not met Paris some other Lothario would have appeared to rob Menelaus of her affections. His doctrines are pernicious. One's soul cries out against them. His book is the very antithesis of Donald G. Mitchell's "Dream Life," and any one who reads "Kreutzer Sonata" cannot do better than purce his memory of it by read "Kreutzer Sonata" cannot do better than purge his memory of it by reading Mitchell's "Dream Life." In the latter mentioned work all that is lovely and lovable in woman, in home life, is eloquently depicted, and, as in the Russian's book, the wife and the mother is tempted, but she does not fall. May the memory of the man who would elevate mankind and womankind three long after the memory of Tolstoi shall have perished. Tolstoi shall have perished.

After a week of repose from the enjoyments or sufferings of the drama, the play-going public of Los Angeles is invited to participate in a varied bill of fare during the week upon which we have entered. For those who like e sad and somber portrayal of human sufferings, who delight in following a "emotional" actress in er attempt to play upon the heartstrings of a sympathetic audience and encourage the shedding of copious tears, there will be an occasion tonight which they had better make

Maud Granger has never before appeared in Los Augeles, and for the occasion of her first visit, which is limited to two nights, she will allow our ublic to form its own estimate of her abilities by witnessing ber performance of the emotional heroine of L'Heritage d'Helene, or, as it is called in its En-glish dress, Inherited. The leading motive of the play deals with the theory of the heriditary transmission of insanity, and, consequently, affords, together with a strong death scene, an excellent chance for an actress of the Clara Morris type to distinguish her-

Following Maud Granger comes Dixey, who opens on Wednesday evening in Adonis, which is to be given with about the same company as that which drew such large houses en its former presentation here. After two nights of Adonis we are to be treated to two nights of The Seven Ages, a burlesque in which, in some mysterious way, Dixey performs each of the seven characters illustrating the successive periods of man's allotted life as de-picted in the celebrated speech of the melancholy Jacques.

The management promises that the full scenery and appointments used in these pieces elsewhere shall be brought to this city and put upon the boards of the Grand Opera House; in short, that nothing shall be wanting to the completeness of the two productions.

The latest production of note in New York city has been a dramatized version of the novel written by the younger Dumas and entitled "L'Affaire Clémenceau." The Clemenceau Case, as the piece is named in its English adaption, has been written by William Fleron, who is credited with having closely followed the offensive indecencies which characterize one of the most notorious specimens of unclean literature. The story deals with adultery, and is a sort of justification of homipide committed by a husband who has a too-fascinating wife under whose spells he has for a time been blind to may be described as resulting in a liasco, chiefly caused by the fact that Pearl Eytinge was permitted to pisy the leading part. The fair Pearl is in possession of very mature charms, and weighs, it is said, in the heighborhood of two hundred pounds. Her attempts, therefore, to portray the girlish, effusive fascinating young wife were so conspicuously ridiculous that the audience broke the bounds which are usually observed on such exhibibitions and openly derided her atare usually observed on such exhibi-bitions and openly derided her at-tempts. Another actress has since been substituted for the role, and gives been substituted for the role, and gives a nightly shock to the audience by undressing for the part of an artist's model in the second act, and revealing her form in snug-fitting pink jersey and tights. This is the kind of entertainment that Manager J. M. Hill is furnishing to the patrons of the Standard Theater, and it is little wonder that "his fine and growing faculty for giving freak performances at his two theaters" is being freely commented upon.

The experience of Pearl Evtinge in The experience of Pearl Eytings in her attempt to portray a character which she had long since lost the power to present or even to suggest, brings to mind how many actresses there are upon the stage today who will not admit that Time's destroying finger has left a mark upon them. or inger has left a mark upon them, or in any way impaired their ancient juvenility. As a consequence one is too often treated to the unimproving too often treated to the unimproving spectacle of a 'Fanchon,' or similar part which should be all there is of fresh and young, spontaneous and fascinating, played by awoman whose mature age the pigments of the stage cannot conceal, and whose attempts at juvenflity are frustrated at the outset by a massive development that in addition makes her gush and sentiment supremely ridiculous. That such people still draw audiences must be owing to the associations that in the minds of play-goers cling to the memory of a name and the desire to see once more the person who used to memory of a name and the desire to see once more the person who used to be so captivating. Also, perhaps, to the indulgence of the critics, who rarely tell the truth on so delicate a question as that involved in the assumption that a woman has outlived her power that a woman has outlived her power of presenting a juvenile part acceptably. She may be passée, but they will not say so, preferring to get around the difficulty by uttering a little insincere and faint praise. And thus the veterans lag superfluous on the stage, while numbers of bright girls who could take their places are kept in the background.

The Dramatic Mirror, in commenting upon a criticism made in these columns recently upon the conceit of a certain English actor as exhibited in wearing his natural moustache in a part where it was grossly inappropriate, endeavors to explain matters by saying that the shaven lip is always enforced by managers among the rank and file of the profession, and that before a man can retain his moustache he must have attained a position where his fads and personal follies have to be condoned in consideration of the fact that his services have grown to be indispensable.

These are facts and in part are the very facts complained of. The Dramatic Mirror thinks it very natural that a veteran and successful actor should wish to look like his brother men and to eschew vulgar attention and remark; by wearing a moustache it is to be presumed. But is it not a fact that the men at the head of the profession, Booth, Warde, Lawrence and Wilson Barrett and many others shave closely, and that the chief offenders are the actors of the "pretty" school, the Herbert Kelseys and the Henry Millers who would never think of sacrificing any part of their hirsute adornment for the sake of conforming to the fitness of things, provided they had a sufficient "pull" on the manager.

They are decidedly particular in Philadelphia. The ordinances of the Quaker City allow an interference to be made with the thearrical posting business and there appears to be a conbe made with the theatrical posting business and there appears to be a censorship which is brought into play whenever anything deemed loud and objectionable is posted on the walls or displayed in the windows of the stores. The advance agent of Fay Templeton having some extra gandy colored cartoons of the burlesque divinity to display, carefully pasted a date slip across that portion of the figure which he thought might excite slarm. But the censor was to be propitiated in no such manner, and after careful investigation the offending posters were torn down, to the grief of the agent and the supposed benefit of the school children of the vicinity.

the 29th inst. The meeting then adjourned.

With last Sunday Dr. W. S. Matthew's year as pastor of the M. E. Church closed. After the morning service, in congratulating the church upon the good work done during the past year, Dr. Matthew read the treasurer's report. It showed that nearly $3500 had been raised, and if a number of contributions to the Y. M. C. A. were included, the amount would be $3000.

We are threatened with a crank Prohibition ticket that are not satisfied with the sincerity of the professions of the Republican leaders. So you see the fight is on and the battle thickens, and the outcome is as uncertain as shooting at peas in the dark. I consider it of very little moment, one way or the other, and yet the show presents many entertaining features. In this Congressional district—which, by the way, comprises thirty-seven counties, or a little over one-third of the entire State—we have two candidates, a Republican lawyer, full and round in form, affable, jovlal, a war hero, a good talker, a fine demagogae, a professional Prohibitionist and a practical good fellow with the boys at all times, and ever ready for the drinks—"Prince Hal." Opposing him is give people's candidate, nominated by the Alliance, endorsed by the Democrats—a man of the people, at present City Marshal of Medicine Lodge, a hamlet of 2000 people; an anarchist, a Henry George man, a social reformer, an ex-Democrat, ex-farmer, a loud-mouthed talker of some ingenuity, and a general ignoramus, titled Jeremiah Simpson, or "Jerry the Constable." These two men are chasing each other about this district of thirty-seven counties, the former speaking to city audiences of business men, old soldiers and women, and the latter to great mobs of disgruntled farmers, who sit with open mouths and applaud to the echo this revolutionist's rabid mouthings against everything that is and ever has been. -:- FASHION NOTES. -:-

NEVER in the history of this house has so much thought, time and expense been so willingly given to the purchase of Fall Goods as there has been this season. Two buyers sought the market this Autumn, and have given their undivided attention to the purchases. We can say no labor nor pains have been spared in accomplishing our one object, and that was to give the ladies of this community an equal chance with their sisters on the Atlantic Coast of having the pick and choice of the Novelties in Dry Goods. We didn't rush in the Market and buy any and everything, and pay large prices, but simply worked and used our brains in selections. If you buy too early you don't get the Choicest Novelties, and you pay too much. Don't, Ladies, be in a hurry to buy, for you will surely repent at your leisure unless you have visited our house. We are sure to please you with style, quality and price. This is no idle talk; but you can't afford to purchase anything until you visit us. Our Novelties are Select in Style and Texture. Our prices are lower than ever. For two reasons we claim this: First-It is our aim to handle a larger quantity than ever; Second-We have bought our Goods as low as cash would purchase, and we had the Market and Cash to command only the lowest prices from the importer.

Rough Stuffs, in Mixed, Plain and Plaids, have the preference in everything in Woolen Goods. Plushes especially are to be used in a variety of forms in Trimmings. Astrachans are affected in many ways for Trim-Velvet Embroidered are used for Gigot Sleeves, Black Grounds with Colored Figures have the preference. Plain Velvets and Velveteens are used extensively. Fringes and hand-made Silk Trimmings, with and without Cut Beads, are very popular, and the best Styles are scarce. We are showing a large line in Scotch, English and French Plaids in Serges and Plain Cloths. Broadcloths are more popular than ever for Tailor-made Costumes. In Plain Goods, Henriettas, Serges and Whip Cords have the sway for light materials, while for Rough effects, Cheviots, Home Spuns and Aldine Suitings have come to the front for Street Dresses. English Corduroys are all the rage for Traveling and Carriage Dresses, and are affected by the

Now, a few words about Black Goods: As in the Colored Goods, rough effects, such as Home Spuns, Cheviots, Camel's Hair, are the correct styles. For Black Goods in smooth effects, we are showing Broadcloths, English Cloths, Serges, Whip Cords, Broad Wales, Plaids, Stripes, Rip Reversible Cords, Henriettas, Rayestines, Biarritz and Sebastopol.

We have many new things in Silk and Woolen Goods to mention, but our space forbids. Come and see these Handsome Goods, and don't buy until you have visited our elegant stock. Remember! Quality superb. Quantity largest. Prices lowest.

Poor Methods of Electing Officials.

THE POND REMEDY CRITICIZED

Anxlety of the Boss Press-Where Pond's Strength Lies-Colored Representatives in Con-

A gentleman well versed in political affairs, told me the other day that never before were there so many purchasable voters in Los Angeles as there are at present. And the candidates with newless rescaled to how them. with sacks are going to buy them by the score. If the miserable wretch who barters his birthright away for an American dollar, is a just object of our scorn, why should we not have an equal contempt for the creature who equal contempt for the creature who buys him? And yet it seems that we haven't, for quite frequently we give him an office so that he may have an opportunity to get his money back. The candidate for office, however, does not often deal directly with the cattle whose votes he buys. His agent is generally some creature whose social cattle whose votes he buys. His a is generally some creature whose so position is a little bit nearer to slums than his own. His office is the siums than his own. His office is the saloon, he gives no checks, but carries several pounds of silver dollars in his pockets on election day. He is usually a foreign citizen, or else one not removed by more than one generation from one of those countries over the sea which furnish us so many readymade office-seekers!

Is there any necessity for our putting into office the impecunious individuals who are not yet through sowing their "wild oats," who have no visible means of support, or whose wisible means of support, or whose manner of living indicates that their expenses are habitually more than expenses are habitually most their income? There are a good many of this class of citizens who are "good fellows," and perfectly honorable in their intentions, but yet, all the same, they are not of the class of men who can safely be put into positions of re-sponsibility. I may be somewhat old-fashioned in my ideas, but I do not care to support for any honorable of-fice, any man whose private life and character will not bear investigation. The business man who has "made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors" and immediately blossomed out on a larger scale than before, and the man about town who has dishonorable "debts of honor" to pay, are two speci-men citizens whom I shall not vote for on whatever ticket they may stand.

Markham's Triumphant Tour.

Markham's Triumphant Tour, ISan Francisco Call, Sept. 27.1
Markham's progress through the North is a continued ovation. He is completely smashing the Democratic chances for a majority and winning hundreds of staunch friends and supporters every day. His personal canvass creates an uninterrupted accumulation of votes and his manifees and lation of votes, and his mantiness and genial disposition have carried the hearts of the Northern people by storm as effectively as those characteristics won the admiration, respect and ever-lasting friendship of the people of the South.

During the day he is whirled around by a four-in-hand over the mountains to introduce himself to the miners and leave them with their huzzas ringing up the heights; or again through the valleys, making himself acquainted with the sturdy yeomanry at the fairs and filling them with enthusiasm for the Republican cause by whole-souled greetings and the brilliancy of his leadership.

The early evening finds him on board a special train hastening to a meeting where his appearance is always a signal for an overwhelming outburst of welcome, and his speeches are received with cheers that proclaim his victory at every polling-place in the State. The eloquent addresses of his right-hand, man, on the platform his right-hand man on the platform, H. V. Morehouse, play an admirable part in the success of the campaign and add very much to the enthusiasm of the Republican ranks all shouthly line.

The directors of the campaign, whose duties oblige them to remain at headquarters at the State Central Committee rooms, are flushed with delight over the evidence of magnificent betadership betrayed by Mark-lam in his march through the North. They are filled with admiration at the sweeping successes which have followed upon every attack made by Markham on the voters in the only section of the State where he had been more or less unknown, and they are now confident that a great victory is already assured.

Every day brings to the headquarters a batch of letters from prominent residents of localities which Markham has stormed and forced to Markham has stormed and forced to capitulate, and these communications all sparkle with enthusiasm for the man whose character and bearing so eminently fit him for the position of Governor of California. A. B. Lemon, editor of the Santa Rosa Republican, and who was leader of Morrow's forces at the convention at Sacramento, has written that Markham was received with ovations at Santa Rosa, and that the feeling in his favor in that section is Al in every respect.

> The Pond Remedy. |San Francisco Bulletin.

It is generally admitted that Col. Markham is making votes wherever he goes throughout the State. He has certainly gained many favorable opinions during his canvass of this city. His method may be said to be original. It is at the same time effective. The Examiner calls it Markham's Mash. It is not proposed to offer any chiectical. It is not proposed to offer any objection to the term. But it will prove to be more effective than Pond's Extract. That mixture is not at all calculated to cure the ills of which the State has to cure the ills of which the State has to complain. It is suffering from a bad attack of Bossism. The extract presented in the case of Mr. Pond will aggravate rather than cure the disease. It will stimulate rather than ward off another attack. Mr. Pond has already been tried in the hope of securing relief. But he is mixed up with impediments which always neutralize him. The But he is mixed up with impediments which always neutralize him. The Solid Nine, and before them the Solid Seven, effaced him in the government of this city. If he should be elected Governor, a solid two-thirds, somehow made up, will always be on hand to club him. The remedy, so far as experience goes, is the best that has yet been concocted for the propagation of Bossism. Mr. Pond is a device by which Buckley can become Mayor or Governor, as the case may be. The 'Markham Mash,' on the other hand, is a progressive winning of votes. It means government of the people, for the people, and by the people.

Anxiety of the Boss Press. [San Francisco Bulletin.] [San Francisco Bulletin.]
It is quite evident that the Independent Democratic movement is creating consternation among the gang which has so long ruled in this city and has more recently annexed the State. The consternation is heightened because not only of the temperate course of the Independent Convention, but the excellence of some of its nomi-nations. The anxiety of some of the Democratic "organs," which pretend to flout bossism, but obey in secret, every order issued by the boss, is be-coming painful in the extreme.

Where Pond's Strength Lies.

[San Francisco Cail.]
Mayor Pond has made the remark that he is more in the habit of carrying out than of explaining platforms.
In other words, his strength lies in ac-In other words, his strength lies in action rather than in talking. This naturally leads people to ask what has been the result of Mr. Pond's tendency to carrying out platforms rather than of explaining them? What platform has Mr. Pond ever carried out? When he became Mayor there was much complaint at the charges of the Spring Valley Water Company. The Democratic platform promised relief. The Mayor and Water Committee went to work to reduce charges. They got the work to reduce charges. They got the case into court, employed lawyers to defend the city's interests, and after a detend the city's interests, and after a flourish of purpose ended where they began. The Spring Valley Company established its own rates, and collects them. The trouble with Pond lies in the fact that he is not the great man of the party. The real head of the party is Christopher Buckley.

Colored Representatives.

[San Francisco Post.] Two colored men were yesterday given the seats in the House of Representatives to which Southern constituencies had elected them, and out of which Southern chivalry had counted them. This was done by the Republican party and was one of the steps against which the thirsty Mr. Kilgore protested with his number nine boot the other day. The Republican position in the matter is plain and appeals to all fair-minded men for support. It to all fair-minded men for support. It is simply that a man elected to a seat is entitled to it and that the fact that his skin is black does not entitle political opponents to steal from him the fruit of his victory and to disfranchise the community.

"Bill McKiney."

New York Correspondence Boston Journal. In the course of his peregrinations Mr. Depew fell into conversation with a French waiter, gifted with that in-tuitive knowledge of English which all French waiters possess. This personage advised him not to visit Parls next year, as it would be very dull and quite despoiled of its present magnificence. "And why?" inquired Mr. Depew. "And why?" inquired Mr. Depew.
"Bill McKiney is going to ruin our commerce with the United States," was the answer of the waiter, who evidently thought le bill McKinley was a person devoting his powers specially to the destruction of France.

Notes.

The Democrats have nominated Russell Heath of Santa Barbara and W. J. McGee of Amador for the Assembly. The Oakland papers are hinting that W. E. Hale may run for Mayor of that city at the spring municipal elec-tion, but the Sheriff doesn't like to talk about that yet, preferring to get through with the election in hand first. —[Alameda Argus.

Why is it that we are so variless of those we love? Why do we sometimes speak harshly, impatiently to them and keep for strangers our gentlest manners and most-thoughtful speech? There is nothing in this whole wide world so priceless as love. It is the one comforter, the one strengthener and helper.

we never can feel utterly life-weary, while we can comfort curselves with the thought that there is one heart that beats in sympathy with our own, and is dependent upon us for happiness. I would rather have one strong, true loyal heart to lean upon than to have all the wealth of the Rothschilds without it. without it.

without it.
We must learn that comfort and gladness are from within. It is not the accessories which wealth brings that makes life beautiful to us, but it that makes life beautiful to us, but it is human sympathy, human companionship—that kinship of soul which is elevated and holy, and unselfish, and that makes us forget life's burdens and cares in the gladness which we have in loving and being loved.

Love is of God and it makes us Godlike. It cleanses us from selfishuess; it makes us ready for self-sacrifice, and it keeps us always atriving to be it keeps us always striving to be worthy of the affection that is ours. Oh the dear old-fashioned love-matches into which there never entered the thought of unfaithfulness or divorce. thought of unfaithfulness or divorce. All the doors of home are forever barred against doubt and distrust, and harmony and peace and watchful tenderness abide continually by the hearthstone, when is the true marriage of heart and soul. There is no coquetry in such married lives. But beautiful trust and tenderness is in all, and over all the belongings to such a home. The twain are one flesh; their hopes, and aspirations and purposes are one, and life is sweet because its houses and joys and trisis and perposes are one, and life is sweet because its hopes and joys and trials and perpexities are all shared together. There are no separate interests, no divided ones. The heart of the husband and wife beat as one, and the children think "father is able, and mother is willing" to do everything that they may ask.

and mother is willing" to do everything that they may ask.

What a shelter for the little ones is the love of two such hearts. What a haven of trust and blessedness! They never dream of father thinking other than as mother does. Husband, wife, child! They are the trinty of earthly gladness and good. Where they are all is safe. There is no danger of ship-wreck through temptation in the home where love is supreme. Truth abides there, and righteousness and the sense of sacred and tender obligation. Purity is there too, and such a home is the center of all earthly delights.

Would that the world had more such homes where the law of love is supreme.

NOTES. Mary Bartlett Brown tells us in the Ladies' Home Journal how to prepare many appetizing sweet dishes and from her I gather the suggestions which I present my readers today:

A French porcupine.—Put a pound of fine fresh raspberries, or red currents, into an enameled saucepan, with a pound and a half of good apples, which have been peeled, cored and sliced yery thin; add a sufficient quantity of crushed leaf-sugar to sweeten the fruit pleasantly, and boil gently until the apples are quite soft and pulpy, then pass the whole through a fine sleye into a basin; stir in two cunces of dissolved gelatine, and pour the preparation into a plain, oval-shaped damp mold. When firm, turn out on to a glass dish, stick it entirely over with blanched, thinly-sliced almonds to resemble, as nearly as possible, the quills of the porcupine, pour over some rich current withough cream or plain, thick Mary Bartlett Brown tells us in the Creme a la Suisse.—For this most de-Creme a ta susse.—For this most used licious dish procure a ring-mold made of tin and measuring two inches wide and two-and-a-half inches deep. In this ring bake some rich spongecake mixture, and when done enough turn out very carefully on to a nice china or glass dish; brush the cake-ring over with vanilla glace and, when quite cold, fill in the center with a high mound of stiffy-whipped cream fla-vored very delicately with vanilla. vored very delicately with vanilia. Ornament the top of the cream with finely-chopped pistachios and candied cherries cut in tiny pieces, and arrange round the base a border of small, fresh green leaves. If preferred, coffee or chocolate glacé may be used for the cake-ring instead of the vanilla glacé, then, of course the flavoring of the cream must correspond.

Frosted fruits—It is a wise plan to prepare a large quantity of these during their season, as they keep good, if prop-erly packed, for almost any length of time, and are useful in such a variety of ways. They form most attractive and popular dishes for dessert, while for garnishing and ornamenting num-erous sweet dishes they are unequaled. erous sweet dishes they are unequaled. The process of frosting, carried out as follows, is a very simple business. Put the fruit, such as apricots, peaches, plums, cherries, etc., into a preserving-pan, with a small piece of alum, and sufficient cold water to cover them; stew for a few minutes, very gently, then take them out. remove the skin and dip the fruit separately into clarified butter, or finest salad oil, and roll in coarsely-crushed loaf sugar. roll in coarsely-crushed loaf sugar When the fruit has been entirely coated in this manner, arrange it of baking tins, and place it in a moderate oven where it must remain until the oven where it must remain until the sugar sparkles, but care must be taken to see that the fruit does not become at all discolored. A lovely effect can be obtained by coating part of the fruit with white sugar, part with green, and part with pink. If required for a dessert dish, pile the different fruits up when cold on a handsome glass dish and garnish tastefully with fresh and garnish tastefully with fresh and garnish tastefully with fresh green leaves; but if not wanted at once pack carefully in boxes with airtight lids, and put a sheet of thin, white paper between each layer. Store in a cool place and use as required.

These dishes are all easy of prepara-tion and will commend themselves to the palate of the duintiest epicure. SUSAN SUNSHINE.
